ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Soviet Union has orbited 46 satellites which probably were spy-in-the-sky spacecraft, according to one of the Johnson administration's specialists on Soviet space activities.

The 46 satellites — launched since 1962, including five this year — "don't fit any pattern" of scientific, navigational or communications - type satellites, Sheldon said.

501 Viet Cong Killed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — An unrelenting display of firepower from ships, planes and artillery cost the Viet Cong 501 killed in the past 24 hours while U.S. fighter-bombers caused new havoc along North Viet Nam's truck and rail routes, Allied officials reported today.

Blizzard Breaks Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The second blizzard in a month had broken up today, but it left the north central and Plains states buried under massive snows. Schools and roads were closed and at least 21 persons were dead.

Nebraska counted 11 dead from the early spring storm. Minnesota and Iowa each had three dead. South Dakota and Wyoming had two deaths each.

The storm hurled a one-two punch of sleet and snow at most of the area. The ice ripped down power lines and powerful winds stacked the snow into impassable drifts.

Travel was virtually halted.

Northerly winds whipped across the storm-stricken region, fanning unseasonably cold air across much of the nation's midsection. Temperatures dropped to the teens from the Dakotas southward to Kansas, with the mercury slipping below zero in northern Minnesota.

Four men were found dead in a car stalled east of Howells in northeastern Nebraska Wednesday. Police said they had suffocated.

A man driving a snowplow found two brothers dead in a stalled truck near Greeley, Neb.

Minneapolis-St. Paul, part of the area which escaped the Dakotas-Montana blizzard three weeks ago, was in the eye of this week's storm. The area lay under 14 inches of snow, with winds whipping drifts to 4 feet.

Much of the Twin Cities business was paralyzed Wednesday.

Norfolk in northeastern Nebraska had 10 inches of snow on top of a 2-inch layer of slush and ice. Many areas of the town of 15,000 were without electricity for more than a day.

Downed power lines also cut electricity in dozens of smaller Nebraska communities.

Changes Are Not Expected

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Hearings open Monday on Missouri's new House districts but the architects of the plan expect no major changes.

That was the word today from Chairman G. Andy Runge, Mexico Republican, and vice chairman Robert S. Dorsey, Brookfield Democrat. They said some minor adjustments might have to be made after three days of public hearings next week, but nothing drastic.

The tentative plan for the 163 new districts was filed with Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick Wednesday afternoon, along with legal descriptions of the new districts and maps.

Officers of the 20-member bipartisan commission said they expect the attorney general to request a ruling from the special federal court which held in December, 1964, that both houses of the Missouri Legislature were malapportioned.

The commission tried to keep district population within 10 per cent either way of the 26,500 norm. The question for the court to decide is whether that is close enough to meet the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote decree.

Under the plan, Mississippi County and part of New Madrid make up the smallest district with a 1960 population of 23,856. Callaway County is the next smallest with two less persons. The largest is Texas County, plus a part of Ft. Leonard Wood. Population there is listed as 28,778.

Some counties had to be split up but Runge and Dorsey said in such cases they tried to keep community interests, trading centers and other such factors in mind.

After next week's hearings, any necessary changes will be made, and the final version will be filed with the secretary of state before April 2, marking out the districts in which 1966 House candidates will run.

The deadline for candidates to file is April 26.

Candidates who filed earlier —129 of them—must re-file because the attorney general ruled Wednesday the early filings were for offices not yet in existence.

Caution Note Sounded

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A taxpayers' organization sounded a note of caution today before the state jumps into a multi-million dollar bond issue for capital improvements.

The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey said a long range study as proposed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is needed first. Hearnes recommended the legislature set up a special commission for such an investigation.

The survey said the study should include an inventory of existing facilities, a check to determine whether maximum use is being made of them and establishment of a schedule of priorities for needed new buildings.

"A commission studying capital outlay needs," the survey said, "will encounter the fact that the state government will either have to increase its taxes in a substantial amount or discontinue the practice, stretching back over a number of years, of adding and expanding programs at a faster rate than growing revenues can finance.

"If present trends continue, the state government is on a collision course with new taxes in a few years."

It cited the fact that when a one-cent increase in the sales tax was enacted in 1963, it was said no more tax increases would be needed for a decade. But many new programs have been added since then.

The survey noted that there has been talk about the need for a bond issue of perhaps $300 million to finance building needs instead of using current general revenue on a pay-as-you-go basis.

But it estimated a $300 million issue would require annual interest and principal payments of $20 million over a 20-year period. Total interest cost might reach $82 million or more.

But if the state appropriated $20 million a year from current revenues, it could build $200 million worth of buildings in 10 years or $400 million worth in 20 years.

"Missouri state government has a record of meeting substantial building requirements on a pay-as-you-go basis," the survey said.

"Meeting capital outlay requirements by means of a bond issue seems less advantageous on several counts than pay-as-you-go financing."

It urged judgment be withheld "that a bond issue is the only answer until the proposed study is completed and all the facts are in."

Board of Trade Protests U.S. Corn Selling Policy

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A letter protesting the recent corn-selling policy of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has been sent to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman by the Kansas City Board of Trade.

The letter charged that the selling policy is causing the livestock feeder to pay higher prices at the producer or country elevator level and at the same time is causing huge losses to the department and the taxpayers. It also contended the policy is severely taxing an already overburdened transportation system.

The complaint arises from recent heavy sales by the Commodity Credit Corporation of surplus government-owned corn. These have caused prices to weaken.

Leading off the complaints in the letter was the charge that corn is being sold to terminal markets away from the producing areas where it is needed. The Board of Trade said it had on file letters that the CCC had prices corn over the market at local elevators and then had shipped the grain to terminals at the lower price— causing a loss to the CCC of from 4 to 18 cents a bushel.

House Group Tries to Clear Budget Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The goal of the House Appropriations Committee was to clear the last of the billion dollar budget bills today.

Then they can be submitted to the House during a technical session Friday and be ready for floor action Monday.

Before the House adjourned Tuesday, Rep. Mel Carnahan, D-Phelps County, majority leader, suggested members come back a little early Monday so they could become familiar with the major money bills. He called for reconvening at 3 p.m.

The appropriations chairman, Rep. Bernard Simcoe, D-Callaway County, said there have been no drastic changes in the budget of $1 billion submitted by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The Senate, meanwhile, plans to work three days next week and then adjourn until April 7. That will give the Senate Appropriations Committee time to work on the budget bills as soon as they are passed by the House.

Court Strips Away Barriers to Voting

WASHINGTON AP -- The Supreme Court voided Virginia's poll tax today and used language that amounts to a bar against any fee requirement or wealth qualification for the right to vote.

Justice John M. Harlan in a dissenting opinion treated the ruling as "the final demise of state poll taxes."

The 6-3 decision was announced by Justice William O. Douglas.

In two other states--Alabama and Texas--federal courts have held the poll tax unconstitutional. The poll tax still is used in Mississippi and Vermont.

Douglas declared that "a state violates the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment whenever it makes the affluence of the voter or payment of any fee an electoral standard."

Justices Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan wrote dissenting opinions. Justice Potter Stewart joining in the Harlan opinion.

For the majority, Douglas declared:

"The principle that denies the state the right to dilute a citizen's vote on account of his economic status or other such factors, by analogy bars a system which exludes those unable to pay a fee to vote, or who fail to pay."

Douglas said the majority's conclusion "is founded not on what we think governmental policy should be, but on what the equal protection clause requires."

The opinion said:

"Wealth or fee paying has, in our view, no relation to voting qualifications; the right to vote is too precious, too fundamental to be so burdened or conditioned."

Justice Harlan's dissenting opinion said the final demise of state poll taxes "is perhaps in itself not of great moment."

"But," said Harlan, "the fact that the coup de grace has been administered by this court instead of being left to the affected states or to the federal political process should be a matter of continuing concern to all interested in attaining the proper role of this tribunal under our scheme of government."

Harlan said he feels there is a rational basis for Virginia's poll tax as a voting qualification, adding "it is all wrong in my view for the court to adopt the political doctrines popularly accepted at a particular moment of our history and to declare all others to be irrational and invidious, barring them from the range of choice by reasonably minded people acting through the political process.

Church Unity Blocked

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI and the Archbishop of Canterbury pledged today that their churches would work toward unity. But the archbishop said afterward the Roman Catholic Church's stand on mixed marriage still was a major barrier.

Archbishop Michael Ramsey made his statement on mixed marriage after he and Pope Paul had prayed together in the Pontifical Basilica of St. Paul's and had issued a joint declaration committing their churches to an active program of collaboration to bring them closer together.

That was the climax of the archbishop's historic three-day visit here—the first by an Anglican primate since the Church of England broke away from the Vatican in 1534.

But the bombshell came several hours later at a news conference. There the archbishop said that Pope Paul's recent easing of mixed marriage regulations "does not satisfy the consciences of Anglican Christians and other non-Roman Catholic Christians."

Dr. Ramsey said he had told the Pope this in their private meeting Wednesday night to discuss ways better relations between the half-billion-member Roman Catholic Church and the 45-million - member Anglican Communion.

The archbishop said the issue of mixed marriages would have an important place in the discussions of a joint Roman Catholic-Anglican commission that would be created.

He said this commission would study doctrinal difficulties.

The Pope's new regulation on marriage lifted the onus of excommunication from Roman Catholics married outside the Church. It also eliminated the obligation of non-Catholic partners in mixed marriages to make a signed promise that the children would be raised as Catholics. But it insisted that the children must be raised as Catholics.

Blizzard Breaks Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The second blizzard in a month had broken up today, but it left the north central and Plains states buried under massive snows. Schools and roads were closed and at least 21 persons were dead.

Nebraska counted 11 dead from the early spring storm. Minnesota and Iowa each had three dead. South Dakota and Wyoming had two deaths each.

The storm hurled a one-two punch of sleet and snow at most of the area. The ice ripped down power lines and powerful winds stacked the snow into impassable drifts.

Travel was virtually halted.

Northerly winds whipped across the storm-stricken region, fanning unseasonably cold air across much of the nation's midsection. Temperatures dropped to the teens from the Dakotas southward to Kansas, with the mercury slipping below zero in northern Minnesota.

Four men were found dead in a car stalled east of Howells in northeastern Nebraska Wednesday. Police said they had suffocated.

A man driving a snowplow found two brothers dead in a stalled truck near Greeley, Neb.

Minneapolis-St. Paul, part of the area which escaped the Dakotas-Montana blizzard three weeks ago, was in the eye of this week's storm. The area lay under 14 inches of snow, with winds whipping drifts to 4 feet.

Much of the Twin Cities business was paralyzed Wednesday.

Norfolk in northeastern Nebraska had 10 inches of snow on top of a 2-inch layer of slush and ice. Many areas of the town of 15,000 were without electricity for more than a day.

Downed power lines also cut electricity in dozens of smaller Nebraska communities.

Changes Are Not Expected

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Hearings open Monday on Missouri's new House districts but the architects of the plan expect no major changes.

That was the word today from Chairman G. Andy Runge, Mexico Republican, and vice chairman Robert S. Dorsey, Brookfield Democrat. They said some minor adjustments might have to be made after three days of public hearings next week, but nothing drastic.

The tentative plan for the 163 new districts was filed with Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick Wednesday afternoon, along with legal descriptions of the new districts and maps.

Officers of the 20-member bipartisan commission said they expect the attorney general to request a ruling from the special federal court which held in December, 1964, that both houses of the Missouri Legislature were malapportioned.

The commission tried to keep district population within 10 per cent either way of the 26,500 norm. The question for the court to decide is whether that is close enough to meet the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote decree.

Under the plan, Mississippi County and part of New Madrid make up the smallest district with a 1960 population of 23,856. Callaway County is the next smallest with two less persons. The largest is Texas County, plus a part of Ft. Leonard Wood. Population there is listed as 28,778.

Some counties had to be split up but Runge and Dorsey said in such cases they tried to keep community interests, trading centers and other such factors in mind.

After next week's hearings, any necessary changes will be made, and the final version will be filed with the secretary of state before April 2, marking out the districts in which 1966 House candidates will run.

The deadline for candidates to file is April 26.

Candidates who filed earlier —129 of them—must re-file because the attorney general ruled Wednesday the early filings were for offices not yet in existence.

Gangsters' Girl Dies

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)—Virginia Hill, once a girlfriend of Bugsy Siegel and other American underworld figures, was found dead near here today.

Police, who gave her age as 50, said there were no indications of foul play but because of her background they ordered an autopsy.

Police said her body was found by strollers on a path running parallel to a brook at a nearby village of Koppl this morning.

She had been living here with her Austrian husband, ski instructor Hans Hauser, for the past 12 years.

She made headlines in Los Angeles in 1954 when she was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of evading $80,180 in federal income tax payments.

It was in her Beverly Hills home that Siegel was pumped full of bullets from a high-powered rifle June 29, 1947.

Caution Note Sounded

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A taxpayers' organization sounded a note of caution today before the state jumps into a multi-million dollar bond issue for capital improvements.

The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey said a long range study as proposed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is needed first. Hearnes recommended the legislature set up a special commission for such an investigation.

The survey said the study should include an inventory of existing facilities, a check to determine whether maximum use is being made of them and establishment of a schedule of priorities for needed new buildings.

"A commission studying capital outlay needs," the survey said, "will encounter the fact that the state government will either have to increase its taxes in a substantial amount or discontinue the practice, stretching back over a number of years, of adding and expanding programs at a faster rate than growing revenues can finance.

"If present trends continue, the state government is on a collision course with new taxes in a few years."

It cited the fact that when a one-cent increase in the sales tax was enacted in 1963, it was said no more tax increases would be needed for a decade. But many new programs have been added since then.

The survey noted that there has been talk about the need for a bond issue of perhaps $300 million to finance building needs instead of using current general revenue on a pay-as-you-go basis.

But it estimated a $300 million issue would require annual interest and principal payments of $20 million over a 20-year period. Total interest cost might reach $82 million or more.

But if the state appropriated $20 million a year from current revenues, it could build $200 million worth of buildings in 10 years or $400 million worth in 20 years.

"Missouri state government has a record of meeting substantial building requirements on a pay-as-you-go basis," the survey said.

"Meeting capital outlay requirements by means of a bond issue seems less advantageous on several counts than pay-as-you-go financing."

It urged judgment be withheld "that a bond issue is the only answer until the proposed study is completed and all the facts are in."

Weather to Be Warmer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Warmer weather is moving back into Missouri.

Board of Trade Protests U.S. Corn Selling Policy

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A letter protesting the recent corn-selling policy of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has been sent to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman by the Kansas City Board of Trade.

The letter charged that the selling policy is causing the livestock feeder to pay higher prices at the producer or country elevator level and at the same time is causing huge losses to the department and the taxpayers. It also contended the policy is severely taxing an already overburdened transportation system.

The complaint arises from recent heavy sales by the Commodity Credit Corporation of surplus government-owned corn. These have caused prices to weaken.

Leading off the complaints in the letter was the charge that corn is being sold to terminal markets away from the producing areas where it is needed. The Board of Trade said it had on file letters that the CCC had prices corn over the market at local elevators and then had shipped the grain to terminals at the lower price— causing a loss to the CCC of from 4 to 18 cents a bushel.

House Group Tries to Clear Budget Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The goal of the House Appropriations Committee was to clear the last of the billion dollar budget bills today.

Then they can be submitted to the House during a technical session Friday and be ready for floor action Monday.

Before the House adjourned Tuesday, Rep. Mel Carnahan, D-Phelps County, majority leader, suggested members come back a little early Monday so they could become familiar with the major money bills. He called for reconvening at 3 p.m.

The appropriations chairman, Rep. Bernard Simcoe, D-Callaway County, said there have been no drastic changes in the budget of $1 billion submitted by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The Senate, meanwhile, plans to work three days next week and then adjourn until April 7. That will give the Senate Appropriations Committee time to work on the budget bills as soon as they are passed by the House.

Court Strips Away Barriers to Voting

WASHINGTON AP -- The Supreme Court voided Virginia's poll tax today and used language that amounts to a bar against any fee requirement or wealth qualification for the right to vote.

Justice John M. Harlan in a dissenting opinion treated the ruling as "the final demise of state poll taxes."

The 6-3 decision was announced by Justice William O. Douglas.

In two other states--Alabama and Texas--federal courts have held the poll tax unconstitutional. The poll tax still is used in Mississippi and Vermont.

Douglas declared that "a state violates the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment whenever it makes the affluence of the voter or payment of any fee an electoral standard."

Justices Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan wrote dissenting opinions. Justice Potter Stewart joining in the Harlan opinion.

For the majority, Douglas declared:

"The principle that denies the state the right to dilute a citizen's vote on account of his economic status or other such factors, by analogy bars a system which exludes those unable to pay a fee to vote, or who fail to pay."

Douglas said the majority's conclusion "is founded not on what we think governmental policy should be, but on what the equal protection clause requires."

The opinion said:

"Wealth or fee paying has, in our view, no relation to voting qualifications; the right to vote is too precious, too fundamental to be so burdened or conditioned."

Justice Harlan's dissenting opinion said the final demise of state poll taxes "is perhaps in itself not of great moment."

"But," said Harlan, "the fact that the coup de grace has been administered by this court instead of being left to the affected states or to the federal political process should be a matter of continuing concern to all interested in attaining the proper role of this tribunal under our scheme of government."

Harlan said he feels there is a rational basis for Virginia's poll tax as a voting qualification, adding "it is all wrong in my view for the court to adopt the political doctrines popularly accepted at a particular moment of our history and to declare all others to be irrational and invidious, barring them from the range of choice by reasonably minded people acting through the political process.

Church Unity Blocked

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI and the Archbishop of Canterbury pledged today that their churches would work toward unity. But the archbishop said afterward the Roman Catholic Church's stand on mixed marriage still was a major barrier.

Archbishop Michael Ramsey made his statement on mixed marriage after he and Pope Paul had prayed together in the Pontifical Basilica of St. Paul's and had issued a joint declaration committing their churches to an active program of collaboration to bring them closer together.

That was the climax of the archbishop's historic three-day visit here—the first by an Anglican primate since the Church of England broke away from the Vatican in 1534.

But the bombshell came several hours later at a news conference. There the archbishop said that Pope Paul's recent easing of mixed marriage regulations "does not satisfy the consciences of Anglican Christians and other non-Roman Catholic Christians."

Dr. Ramsey said he had told the Pope this in their private meeting Wednesday night to discuss ways better relations between the half-billion-member Roman Catholic Church and the 45-million - member Anglican Communion.

The archbishop said the issue of mixed marriages would have an important place in the discussions of a joint Roman Catholic-Anglican commission that would be created.

He said this commission would study doctrinal difficulties.

The Pope's new regulation on marriage lifted the onus of excommunication from Roman Catholics married outside the Church. It also eliminated the obligation of non-Catholic partners in mixed marriages to make a signed promise that the children would be raised as Catholics. But it insisted that the children must be raised as Catholics.

At times cost comparisons made are strange to say the least.

For example a New York bank publication reports that the costs of dealing with water and air pollution in the United States could easily rival those for space exploration.

The comparison is useful to the extent that while the average American cannot comprehend the cost of space exploration in terms of his own family budget, he does know that the cost is astronomical.

But the peculiar aspect about the comparison is that there is an implication that water and air pollution might not be worth as much to the country as space exploration.

How can this be? Control of pollution is becoming increasingly necessary to protect the health--in some instance the lives--of the American people. How can the American people afford to trifle with their own personal welfare by ignoring threats to their health? What is left for them if they are weakened by a lack of sanitation in the air they breathe and the water they drink? What can they hope to accomplish in any creative endeavor if their health is poor and their living conditions hazardous.

The benefits of pure air and water are known.

The benefits of space exploration are not.

In comparing costs of these endeavors, a known benefit to mankind is being measured against a conjectural one.

This does not mean that benefits will not come from space exploration and from the race to land a man on the moon. The space race is desirable and necessary but the benefits are not known. This effort is a speculation.

In water and air pollution control the risk is in not achieving it regardless of cost. Buying it is an investment.

Pollution control may be beyond the realm of private investment or even of government subdivisions smaller than the federal government but that doesn't make it any less necessary for the general welfare.

One of the major tasks will be educate the people to the value of control. Many more glamorous and better understood projects now are being considered by the residents of cities and states. Industries are discouraged from taking the initiative because of the costs of control, the influence of competition and the fact that the benefits go to communities down-river or down-wind and not to them, their employes or their community's residents.

Tax incentives or broad community programs in which residents pick up all or part of the tab may prove to be the answer but the need for control is real and not conjectural such as that of space exploration.

THE JONES WARNING

U.S. Representative Paul Jones' analysis of President Johnson's revenue measures designed to finance the war in Viet Nam strikes us as being much more realistic than the chief executive's. The White House has declared its belief our expanded war efforts can be financed by reinstating the wartime emergency taxes on new automobiles and telephone calls, although not on previously-taxed luxuries such as jewelry and furs.

Our Bootheel Congressman takes issue with this contention, and we believe he is on safe ground.

The expected deficit for the next fiscal year has been estimated at slightly more than $1 billion, but fiscal experts outside the administration place the figure at more than $5 billion despite the reinstated tax levies. The hurry-up of withholding is an emergency measure and nothing more; it will add not one additional penny to the federal treasury at the end of the fiscal year.

Rep. Jones has already warned his fellow Congressmen of the possible consequences, and as usual, the Southeast Missourian's words went unheeded. We shall soon see who is right.

We'd give odds the gentleman from Missouri is.

The long predicted consolidation of New York newspapers has been announced. The federal government probably will give its blessing to the plan, which wisely involves consolidation of printing facilities.

High operating costs as well as competition from other news media are responsible for the predicament that the New York daily newspapers find themselves in but the labor unions, which bargain with the publications, cannot escape responsibility for hastening the decline.

The International Typographical Union has steadfastly refused to permit the newspapers to achieve economics through automation. It has consistently required that all profits from automation be passed on to its members. This, of course, makes automation impractical and meaningless. Economic demands of the unions have not been practical or realistic and a mockery has been made of the collective bargaining process.

This has left the newspapers operating with small or no profit and no place to go except out.

The federal government, which is fond of criticizing the growth of one newspaper cities and of the declining number of voices in the press, should take a look at the cause of the difficulty.

Instead of blaming management for consolidating and eliminating unprofitable publications it should look at the cause of the high operating costs that are driving newspapers to the wall and act to achieve a better balance in management-labor relations and with some recognition given to the needs of the consumers--those who read newspapers.

The New York Journal-American and the New York World-Telegram and Sun, afternoon dailies, will be merged as the World Journal.

The Sunday editions of the Journal-American and the Herald-Tribune will be combined under the name of World Journal and Tribune.

The effect of this merger is a reduction of one afternoon daily and one Sunday newspaper. New York will be left with three morning, two afternoon newspapers and three Sunday newspapers.

Several hundred persons, who have enjoyed unrealistically high earning power and fringe benefits, will find themselves out of work.

Consumers will be restricted in the number of papers that are available for them to read.

Hopefully the remaining newspapers will be able to show enough profit to stay in business and to compete aggressively.

PRINCE OF WALES

The custom of calling the eldest son of the British sovereign the Prince of Wales dates back to the time of Edward the First of England. Edward brought northern Wales under his control in 1284 and his first son was born in a castle in the Welsh district of Caernarvon. The legend goes that when the Welsh were murmuring against the foreign king, Edward held up the baby, saying, "I give you a Welsh prince, born in Wales." The firstborn son of British kings has borne the title, Prince of Wales, ever since.

BITTER FRUIT

Washington now wants to launch a new "massive program" against urban blight despite its long record of failures in slum clearance.

Just recently the Detroit Common Council in a resolution listed examples of the sorry record of federal urban renewal there.

Detroit's city fathers, pleading for improvements noted:

". . . Lengthy delays in acquiring property . . . Property is frequently vandalized during the delay, causing substantial financial loss . . . (and) procedures for early acquisition of property in urban renewal projects are unwieldy and do not lend themselves to the alleviation of hardships. . ."

Other cities, too, are finding out--like the auto city--that when they bought federal urban renewal, they got a lemon.

WHEN JURY TRIAL IS NOT IMPARTIAL

Every man is entitled to an impartial trial and judgment by a jury of his peers. This is expecially true if he is accused of a capital crime.

But what if the very existence of the death penalty, and the requirement that jurors theoretically approve it, stacks the jury against the defendant?

In one of the first studies ever made of jurors in capital trials, a psychologist raises a fundamental question about the nature of justice in the majority of our states.

For his doctoral dissertation, Robert Crosson interviewed 72 residents of Cuyahoga county (Cleveland), Ohio, who had served on criminal court juries.

Half these citizens had served in cases involving a possible death penalty; the others had been rejected from sitting on such cases because they opposed capital punishment.

Crosson describes the first group as "death qualified" and the second group as "death scruples."

He found that the DQ jurors were significantly more conservative and less humane than the DS jurors, and that the DS jurors seemed to be better critical thinkers -- better able to evaluate verbal arguments.

He concludes that the capital punishment qualification results in the exclusion of liberal jurors and the inclusion of authoritarian ones, and "instead of insuring impartiality, seems to undermine the defendant's right to a fair trial because of a personality selectivity which may predispose the jury to his disadvantage."

The psychologist suggests that the removal of the death qualification would be a step in the direction of fairer jury representation -- "which might better serve justice instead of just the prosecutor."

To do this, of course, would be tantamount to abolishing the death penalty entirely, which is something many reformers have been urging all along.

AN ACHIEVEMENT FOR WOMANHOOD

The Orient has traditionally been associated with the repression of women. It was the home of the veil, the harem, the practices of foot-binding and suttee.

The latter custom, which demanded that widows throw themselves on the funeral pyres of their husbands, originated in old India. Thus it is all the more significant that the third person chosen to lead that huge country's emergence into the modern world is both a woman and a widow, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of the late Jawaharlal Nehru.

She becomes the second woman in modern times to head an elected government. The first was also in Asia, Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Ceylon.

This is something no nation in the Occident, despite all the progressivism of that part of the world, has achieved. Westerners are willing to worship women as goddesses, movie or otherwise, but not vote for them as presidents or prime ministers.

Mrs. Gandhi faces truly staggering problems in governing the world's largest democracy, the most acute of which are runaway population growth and worsening food shortages.

Her beginning has been auspicious; she has pledged to honor the peace agreement with Pakistan that was concluded by Prime Minister Shastri only hours before he died.

If her subsequent days in office are as encouraging, the East, in the person of Mrs. Gandhi, may well prove the validity of the saying popular in the West.

"Never underestimate the power of a woman."

Persons who insist on taking a part in liberty's cause are finding new, unfolding and interesting events as a fine vehicle to voice their ardent desires. There is the bright hope that the defeat of Communists among the following of Sukarno may be followed by pro-freedom uprisings in Africa. The recent elections in Norway, Turkey, Saskatchewan, and Austria in which the Socialists have been voted out of office are good news.

Non-Communists may write or cause their friends to write acquaintances in these countries which are turning to the "despised right" commending them for the actions taken in their countries and in writing, they may discreetly ask their friends abroad "How much have you personally benefited from U. It is a good time to combat the "ugly American" and "Yankee go home" atmospheres prevalent there which are detrimental to the U.S.A. in world opinion. Many patriots can recall that the Communists were expected to win or gain sensationally in an election in Italy. U. S. A. NEW YORK (AP) — Being Irish is a pleasure, not an industry.

Now that St. Patrick's Day has come and gone, I'd like to clear up some misconceptions about the Irish — as far as I have known them.

Some years ago, in a burst of youthful perception, I wrote in exclamatory affection a favorable piece about the Irish.

Answering the question "What is it to be Irish?" this was a point I made:

A lonesome friend said, "Well, that's very nice, but the year has 365 days. How does it feel to be Irish the other 364 days."

Well, some of the Irish I've known are like this:

Life is their favorite challenge but death is not their worst enemy.

They celebrate birth as they do departure. They are proud of a child being born and aren't particularly sad if a relative over 80 yields a final breath. They know they'll meet him in heaven.

Some regard the Irish as too brash on earth, and perhaps they are. Their conduct, however, reflects a confidence in heaven.

But sure as they are of eternity, nothing breaks an Irish family's heart more than if one of their young ones is called to God sooner than they want to let him go.

Performance is the flower of the Irishman's desire.

Joy is part of his way.

He is fantastically loyal but his biggest quarrels are among his own.

He is generous. Since he has never owned his own country completely, he will lend his shirt to anybody — and borrow the other fellow's coat right back.

In psychological terms, the Irishman is a manic-depressive and a paranoic. He joys and weeps with or without reason and secretly feels the world mistakes him. He laughs in sorrow and sorrows in laughter.

Well, to wrap it up, the way it feels to be Irish 365 days out of the year, including St. Patrick's Day, is to enjoy a gossip with immortality, like a child talking to a forever father.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

WASHINGTON -- A lot of people have been writing Jack Anderson and me about Sen. Tom Todd, Democratic of Connecticut. Some have praised the columns regarding his conflict of interest; others have said: How can we be so mean to a fine man who has done so much to expose Communism? They imply that because we have explosed an enemy of Communism we must be pro-Communist.

I haven't had a chance to reply to most of these letters, but the answer is that we don't get any kick out of exposing--or as some people put it, "crucifying" -- any one senator. It's the senate standards, the rules of conduct, which are important.

Reporting on these things is by no means pleasant. In the first place, it's a terrific job to dig out all the materials--Jack Anderson has been taken away from all other work in order to report on Sen. Dodd. The material just doesn't fall in your lap from a disgruntled employee, as Dodd has insinuated. In the second place, this kind of reporting sometimes leads to very unhappy results.

One man, Sen. John Bankhead of Alabama, may have died because of an earlier column series of conflict of interest. His family, who were good friends of mine (his brother, Speaker Will Bankhead, having once lived in my house), always blamed me for the senator's death.

You feel terrible when this kind of thing happens. But you don't know when you start investigating that a senator has a weak heart; and you don't always know how deep a conflict of interest runs.

CASUALTY OF A COLUMN

In Bankhead's case, the column, after long and expensive research on the commodity market in New York, had discovered in 1946 that Bankhead and Sen. Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, both Democrats, had an arrangement with a New York broker to invest in cotton just a few hours before they made a speech urging the end of wartime controls on cotton.

Cotton was scarce at that time, shortly after the war, and their speeches sent up the price. After each speech they made money on the commodity market. So did the brokers who were in cahoots with them.

When I published this, Sen. Bankhead died of a heart attack, and Sen. Thomas later was defeated by the voters of Oklahoma.

The man who succeeded Thomas, Sen. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, also a Democrat, has been a fine senator. Incidentally, he sits on the Senate Ethics committee now considering the conduct of Sen. Dodd.

The columns on Thomas and Bankhead had another aftermath. Congress had just passed a lobbying law, and a young New York lawyer, Irving Kauffman, had come down from New York to enforce it. He didn't know much about Washington, and was wandering around aimlessly looking for something to sink his teeth into when he suggested that he look into the commodity market operators who had been working with senators Thomas and Bankhead, to see whether they had violated the lobbying act by influencing the cotton market without registering as lobbyists.

Kauffman promptly had the speculators indicated and, partly as a result of the attendant publicity, he went on to become a U. S. Judge, and incidentally a close friend of Sen. Dodd. They are bosom witchhunters.

WHAT IS SENATE ETHICS?

Significantly, the senate did not move to censure or discipline Sen. Thomas for using the high privilege of the senate floor to influence the price of cotton and cash in on it. Thomas engaged in a lot of activities to influence commodity prices, all clearly unethical, but his colleagues never called him on it. The justice department had enough incriminating facts to indict his commodity broker partners, but Sen. Thomas's colleagues did not call him to account.

This has become more or less standard practice where a senator's finances are concerned, and the Ethics committee today is carefully avoiding a probe of Sen. Dodd's finances.

In 1952 this column published many details on the commodity speculation of Sen. Joseph McCarthy and how he had used thousands of dollars sent him by patriotic citizens to investigate Communism for his own personal speculation in the commodity market.

Later Sen. Tom Hennings, D-Mo., Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., and Robert Hendrickson, R-N. J., went into even more detail on McCarthy's speculation. However, the senate never acted on it.

When it did finally get around to censuring McCarthy two years later, it was not for using other people's money to gamble on the commodity market but for his conduct of the Army-McCarthy hearings.

The man who had the courage to press for the censure of Joe McCarthy in 1952 was a senator of unusual courage because few senators will move against a member of the club. He was Sen. William Benton, D-Conn., and because of Benton's courage, McCarthy invaded Connecticut in 1952 defeated him. Two years later the people of Connecticut realized their mistake when in 1954 McCarthy was censured.

It was Benton's defeat which made an opening for the election of Sen. Dodd. And it's significant that the Senate Ethics committee, as in the censure of McCarthy, is concentrating on Dodd's committee conduct, not on his finances.

Note: In the opinion of this writer, the vast majority of senators are scrupulously honest. But they are not scrupulous about protecting their reputations by policing their membership.

Disclose Use of Mechanical Man, New Lunar Tool Box, Orbital Mechanics to Crack Space Problems

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- When poet Henry David Thoreau wrote that "The youth gets together his materials to build a bridge to the moon," little did he realize there was more truth than poetry in his lyrics.

There's nothing gossamer about what's happening now behind the scenes of the Apollo project.

There is a vast new industry a-burgeoning which would confound a panel of Batmen and .007. There is the beginning of orbital mechanics, space repairmen, strange lunar tools and adjustable mechanical men.

This nation would have known more about all of it if Major David Scott had been able to take the number two American walk in space. Nonetheless it is so much upon us that the tool makers' union, the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM), has begun to report regularly to its million members on orbital mechanics and has taken on an associate editor as a space-tool specialist for its dynamic newspaper, THE MACHINIST.

He's just out of the Air Force, Bob Kalaski, working with editor Gordon Cole, the still young dean of the labor press.

They report that Major Scott was scheduled to do more than test the effect of getting into space, working his way around the Gemini 8 capsule by hand rail and then merely wiping a window. He was to remove and replace a plate. He was to loosen and tighten two bolts.

He had with him a special, self-generating power wrench which he could hold steady while the inside revolves and hammers. Otherwise, had he attempted to twist the nut himself, he could have twirled or spun off in violent turns since he would have nothing on which to brace himself.

The other tools also were to compensate for the lack of gravitation. Had he been bound for the moon, he'd have had with him a special "moon tool chest." It will be two cubic feet in size. It will hold 16 geological tools. It will be reversible, so when the astronaut finally is soft-landed he can turn it inside out.

The tools would then be on the surface. The interior would then become a moon sample-case for the return trip. He would be allowed only a maximum weight of 80 pounds for the happy homecoming.

The big item in the lunar tool kit is a battery-powered drill -- small. It will be capable of operating for an hour, chiseling any rock material from hard basalt to powdery pumice. It will be able to bore a hole six inches deep into the moon's surface.

Other lunar tools will include a hand-held magnifier, which will be coordinated with the helmet visor; a sample retriever for rock specimens; a maximum accuracy hammer, a sampling trowel, tiny brush, and self-sealing, moon-dust tubes.

But all the time the astronaut will have to work in a bulky suit which can withstand extreme cold, extreme heat, radiation, vacuum and hits by micrometeoroids.

Difficulty with fabricating such a suit lay in the fact that a human model could not specifically report the stresses on it and the effect of his own movements.

So three years ago NASA ordered a mechanical man. Last May they got the automan, they tell me, and shipped it from Chicago to the Manned Spacecraft Center, Crew Systems Lab in Houston.

The mechanical man gave space suit designers "the first exact data concerning resistance offered by pressurized space suits to the movements of an occupant. . . . the conservation of energy and comfort of the astronauts in their suits is very important especially on space flights of long duration such as the Apollo flight to the moon."

The mechanical man -- intrinsically worth $200,000 to the human's 98 cents -- hardly is a Frankenstein monster. He is six feet two -- and weighs 230 pounds. He can be adjusted to five feet five, which should fascinate caloric-conscious America.

It is a power-driven "articulated" dummy. It is powered by oil under pressure delivered through a blood-vessel-like system of plastic tubes to hydraulic actuators at 35 joints -- from feet to finger tips. It can shrug its shoulders and clench its fists.

Any man - or woman, come to think of it -- can do that. But what is unique with the mechanical moon man is its ability to measure precisely the amount of force it generates in any one of its simulated movements of the human body.

It's a new world a-making. Let's hope it's a brave one as its youth builds its bridge to the stars.

At times cost comparisons made are strange to say the least.

For example a New York bank publication reports that the costs of dealing with water and air pollution in the United States could easily rival those for space exploration.

The comparison is useful to the extent that while the average American cannot comprehend the cost of space exploration in terms of his own family budget, he does know that the cost is astronomical.

But the peculiar aspect about the comparison is that there is an implication that water and air pollution might not be worth as much to the country as space exploration.

How can this be? Control of pollution is becoming increasingly necessary to protect the health--in some instance the lives--of the American people. How can the American people afford to trifle with their own personal welfare by ignoring threats to their health? What is left for them if they are weakened by a lack of sanitation in the air they breathe and the water they drink? What can they hope to accomplish in any creative endeavor if their health is poor and their living conditions hazardous.

The benefits of pure air and water are known.

The benefits of space exploration are not.

In comparing costs of these endeavors, a known benefit to mankind is being measured against a conjectural one.

This does not mean that benefits will not come from space exploration and from the race to land a man on the moon. The space race is desirable and necessary but the benefits are not known. This effort is a speculation.

In water and air pollution control the risk is in not achieving it regardless of cost. Buying it is an investment.

Pollution control may be beyond the realm of private investment or even of government subdivisions smaller than the federal government but that doesn't make it any less necessary for the general welfare.

One of the major tasks will be educate the people to the value of control. Many more glamorous and better understood projects now are being considered by the residents of cities and states. Industries are discouraged from taking the initiative because of the costs of control, the influence of competition and the fact that the benefits go to communities down-river or down-wind and not to them, their employes or their community's residents.

Tax incentives or broad community programs in which residents pick up all or part of the tab may prove to be the answer but the need for control is real and not conjectural such as that of space exploration.

THE JONES WARNING

U.S. Representative Paul Jones' analysis of President Johnson's revenue measures designed to finance the war in Viet Nam strikes us as being much more realistic than the chief executive's. The White House has declared its belief our expanded war efforts can be financed by reinstating the wartime emergency taxes on new automobiles and telephone calls, although not on previously-taxed luxuries such as jewelry and furs.

Our Bootheel Congressman takes issue with this contention, and we believe he is on safe ground.

The expected deficit for the next fiscal year has been estimated at slightly more than $1 billion, but fiscal experts outside the administration place the figure at more than $5 billion despite the reinstated tax levies. The hurry-up of withholding is an emergency measure and nothing more; it will add not one additional penny to the federal treasury at the end of the fiscal year.

Rep. Jones has already warned his fellow Congressmen of the possible consequences, and as usual, the Southeast Missourian's words went unheeded. We shall soon see who is right.

We'd give odds the gentleman from Missouri is.

The long predicted consolidation of New York newspapers has been announced. The federal government probably will give its blessing to the plan, which wisely involves consolidation of printing facilities.

High operating costs as well as competition from other news media are responsible for the predicament that the New York daily newspapers find themselves in but the labor unions, which bargain with the publications, cannot escape responsibility for hastening the decline.

The International Typographical Union has steadfastly refused to permit the newspapers to achieve economics through automation. It has consistently required that all profits from automation be passed on to its members. This, of course, makes automation impractical and meaningless. Economic demands of the unions have not been practical or realistic and a mockery has been made of the collective bargaining process.

This has left the newspapers operating with small or no profit and no place to go except out.

The federal government, which is fond of criticizing the growth of one newspaper cities and of the declining number of voices in the press, should take a look at the cause of the difficulty.

Instead of blaming management for consolidating and eliminating unprofitable publications it should look at the cause of the high operating costs that are driving newspapers to the wall and act to achieve a better balance in management-labor relations and with some recognition given to the needs of the consumers--those who read newspapers.

The New York Journal-American and the New York World-Telegram and Sun, afternoon dailies, will be merged as the World Journal.

The Sunday editions of the Journal-American and the Herald-Tribune will be combined under the name of World Journal and Tribune.

The effect of this merger is a reduction of one afternoon daily and one Sunday newspaper. New York will be left with three morning, two afternoon newspapers and three Sunday newspapers.

Several hundred persons, who have enjoyed unrealistically high earning power and fringe benefits, will find themselves out of work.

Consumers will be restricted in the number of papers that are available for them to read.

Hopefully the remaining newspapers will be able to show enough profit to stay in business and to compete aggressively.

Just recently the Detroit Common Council in a resolution listed examples of the sorry record of federal urban renewal there.

Detroit's city fathers, pleading for improvements noted:

". . . Lengthy delays in acquiring property . . . Property is frequently vandalized during the delay, causing substantial financial loss . . . (and) procedures for early acquisition of property in urban renewal projects are unwieldy and do not lend themselves to the alleviation of hardships. . ."

WHEN JURY TRIAL IS NOT IMPARTIAL

Every man is entitled to an impartial trial and judgment by a jury of his peers. This is expecially true if he is accused of a capital crime.

But what if the very existence of the death penalty, and the requirement that jurors theoretically approve it, stacks the jury against the defendant?

In one of the first studies ever made of jurors in capital trials, a psychologist raises a fundamental question about the nature of justice in the majority of our states.

For his doctoral dissertation, Robert Crosson interviewed 72 residents of Cuyahoga county (Cleveland), Ohio, who had served on criminal court juries.

Half these citizens had served in cases involving a possible death penalty; the others had been rejected from sitting on such cases because they opposed capital punishment.

Crosson describes the first group as "death qualified" and the second group as "death scruples."

He found that the DQ jurors were significantly more conservative and less humane than the DS jurors, and that the DS jurors seemed to be better critical thinkers -- better able to evaluate verbal arguments.

He concludes that the capital punishment qualification results in the exclusion of liberal jurors and the inclusion of authoritarian ones, and "instead of insuring impartiality, seems to undermine the defendant's right to a fair trial because of a personality selectivity which may predispose the jury to his disadvantage."

The psychologist suggests that the removal of the death qualification would be a step in the direction of fairer jury representation -- "which might better serve justice instead of just the prosecutor."

To do this, of course, would be tantamount to abolishing the death penalty entirely, which is something many reformers have been urging all along.

AN ACHIEVEMENT FOR WOMANHOOD

The Orient has traditionally been associated with the repression of women. It was the home of the veil, the harem, the practices of foot-binding and suttee.

The latter custom, which demanded that widows throw themselves on the funeral pyres of their husbands, originated in old India. Thus it is all the more significant that the third person chosen to lead that huge country's emergence into the modern world is both a woman and a widow, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of the late Jawaharlal Nehru.

She becomes the second woman in modern times to head an elected government. The first was also in Asia, Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Ceylon.

This is something no nation in the Occident, despite all the progressivism of that part of the world, has achieved. Westerners are willing to worship women as goddesses, movie or otherwise, but not vote for them as presidents or prime ministers.

Mrs. Gandhi faces truly staggering problems in governing the world's largest democracy, the most acute of which are runaway population growth and worsening food shortages.

Her beginning has been auspicious; she has pledged to honor the peace agreement with Pakistan that was concluded by Prime Minister Shastri only hours before he died.

If her subsequent days in office are as encouraging, the East, in the person of Mrs. Gandhi, may well prove the validity of the saying popular in the West.

"Never underestimate the power of a woman."

When I published this, Sen. Bankhead died of a heart attack, and Sen. Thomas later was defeated by the voters of Oklahoma.

The man who succeeded Thomas, Sen. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, also a Democrat, has been a fine senator. Incidentally, he sits on the Senate Ethics committee now considering the conduct of Sen. Dodd.

The columns on Thomas and Bankhead had another aftermath. Congress had just passed a lobbying law, and a young New York lawyer, Irving Kauffman, had come down from New York to enforce it. He didn't know much about Washington, and was wandering around aimlessly looking for something to sink his teeth into when he suggested that he look into the commodity market operators who had been working with senators Thomas and Bankhead, to see whether they had violated the lobbying act by influencing the cotton market without registering as lobbyists.

Kauffman promptly had the speculators indicated and, partly as a result of the attendant publicity, he went on to become a U. S. Judge, and incidentally a close friend of Sen. Dodd. They are bosom witchhunters.

WHAT IS SENATE ETHICS?

Significantly, the senate did not move to censure or discipline Sen. Thomas for using the high privilege of the senate floor to influence the price of cotton and cash in on it. Thomas engaged in a lot of activities to influence commodity prices, all clearly unethical, but his colleagues never called him on it. The justice department had enough incriminating facts to indict his commodity broker partners, but Sen. Thomas's colleagues did not call him to account.

This has become more or less standard practice where a senator's finances are concerned, and the Ethics committee today is carefully avoiding a probe of Sen. Dodd's finances.

In 1952 this column published many details on the commodity speculation of Sen. Joseph McCarthy and how he had used thousands of dollars sent him by patriotic citizens to investigate Communism for his own personal speculation in the commodity market.

Later Sen. Tom Hennings, D-Mo., Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., and Robert Hendrickson, R-N. J., went into even more detail on McCarthy's speculation. However, the senate never acted on it.

When it did finally get around to censuring McCarthy two years later, it was not for using other people's money to gamble on the commodity market but for his conduct of the Army-McCarthy hearings.

The man who had the courage to press for the censure of Joe McCarthy in 1952 was a senator of unusual courage because few senators will move against a member of the club. He was Sen. William Benton, D-Conn., and because of Benton's courage, McCarthy invaded Connecticut in 1952 defeated him. Two years later the people of Connecticut realized their mistake when in 1954 McCarthy was censured.

It was Benton's defeat which made an opening for the election of Sen. Dodd. And it's significant that the Senate Ethics committee, as in the censure of McCarthy, is concentrating on Dodd's committee conduct, not on his finances.

Note: In the opinion of this writer, the vast majority of senators are scrupulously honest. But they are not scrupulous about protecting their reputations by policing their membership.

Disclose Use of Mechanical Man, New Lunar Tool Box, Orbital Mechanics to Crack Space Problems

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- When poet Henry David Thoreau wrote that "The youth gets together his materials to build a bridge to the moon," little did he realize there was more truth than poetry in his lyrics.

There's nothing gossamer about what's happening now behind the scenes of the Apollo project.

There is a vast new industry a - burgeoning which would confound a panel of Batmen and .007. There is the beginning of orbital mechanics, space repairmen, strange lunar tools and adjustable mechanical men.

This nation would have known more about all of it if Major David Scott had been able to take the number two American walk in space. Nonetheless it is so much upon us that the tool makers' union, the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM), has begun to report regularly to its million members on orbital mechanics and has taken on an associate editor as a space-tool specialist for its dynamic newspaper, THE MACHINIST.

He's just out of the Air Force, Bob Kalaski, working with editor Gordon Cole, the still young dean of the labor press.

They report that Major Scott was scheduled to do more than test the effect of getting into space, working his way around the Gemini 8 capsule by hand rail and then merely wiping a window. He was to remove and replace a plate. He was to loosen and tighten two bolts.

He had with him a special, self-generating power wrench which he could hold steady while the inside revolves and hammers. Otherwise, had he attempted to twist the nut himself, he could have twirled or spun off in violent turns since he would have nothing on which to brace himself.

The other tools also were to compensate for the lack of gravitation. Had he been bound for the moon, he'd have had with him a special "moon tool chest." It will be two cubic feet in size. It will hold 16 geological tools. It will be reversible, so when the astronaut finally is soft-landed he can turn it inside out.

The tools would then be on the surface. The interior would then become a moon sample-case for the return trip. He would be allowed only a maximum weight of 80 pounds for the happy homecoming.

The big item in the lunar tool kit is a battery-powered drill -- small. It will be capable of operating for an hour, chiseling any rock material from hard basalt to powdery pumice. It will be able to bore a hole six inches deep into the moon's surface.

Other lunar tools will include a hand-held magnifier, which will be coordinated with the helmet visor; a sample retriever for rock specimens; a maximum accuracy hammer, a sampling trowel, tiny brush, and self-sealing, moon-dust tubes.

But all the time the astronaut will have to work in a bulky suit which can withstand extreme cold, extreme heat, radiation, vacuum and hits by micrometeoroids.

Difficulty with fabricating such a suit lay in the fact that a human model could not specifically report the stresses on it and the effect of his own movements.

So three years ago NASA ordered a mechanical man. Last May they got the automan, they tell me, and shipped it from Chicago to the Manned Spacecraft Center, Crew Systems Lab in Houston.

The mechanical man gave space suit designers "the first exact data concerning resistance offered by pressurized space suits to the movements of an occupant. . . . the conservation of energy and comfort of the astronauts in their suits is very important especially on space flights of long duration such as the Apollo flight to the moon."

The mechanical man -- intrinsically worth $200,000 to the human's 98 cents -- hardly is a Frankenstein monster. He is six feet two -- and weighs 230 pounds. He can be adjusted to five feet five, which should fascinate caloric-conscious America.

It is a power-driven "articulated" dummy. It is powered by oil under pressure delivered through a blood-vessel-like system of plastic tubes to hydraulic actuators at 35 joints -- from feet to finger tips. It can shrug its shoulders and clench its fists.

Any man - or woman, come to think of it -- can do that. But what is unique with the mechanical moon man is its ability to measure precisely the amount of force it generates in any one of its simulated movements of the human body.

It's a new world a-making. Let's hope it's a brave one as its youth builds its bridge to the stars.

Spring Brings Lower Food Prices

NEW YORK AP -- Spring arrived this week, and with it lower prices for food shoppers.

The prospect is for lower prices for pork, turkey, chicken and eggs.

Lamb is likely to be more costly when the early spring lambs move to market next month. There may not be as many available this year, because farmers are holding back so many more ewes.

In the dairy section, the outlook is for higher prices than 1965. Milk production is down. So are butter and cheese.

In produce, cold weather has stalled the growth of vegetables in Florida.

Cold weather also has stalled the growth of the spinach crop in California, and heavy rains have disrupted the strawberry harvest in Mexico.

Peas, applesauce, pimento and king crab are plentiful. But there is less canned asparagus, creamed corn, frozen broccoli, tuna fish and oysters.

Orange juice currently is the lowest - priced single-strength citrus juice, the reverse of its usual position. Prices of frozen orange juice concentrate also have been lower than a year ago.

"Lower federal tax rates would make it easier for state and local governments to finance their growing needs, and there would thus be less reason for the federal government to concern itself with activities that can be usually managed better on a decentralized basis."

KATHERINE MARGARET LEITCH of Tarkio high school, Tarkio, has been named Missouri's 1966 Homemaker of Tomorrow and will receive a $1,500 scholarship.

Katherine Leitch Is State Homemaker of Tomorrow

Katherine Margaret Leitch of Tarkio high school, Tarkio, has been named Missouri's 1966 Homemaker of Tomorrow and will receive a $1,500 scholarship. Katherine, who lives at 1302 Park Street, Tarkio, ranked first among 14,152 senior girls in 485 of the state's high schools.

Ranking second in the state is Janice Kay Threlkeld, Poplar Bluff high school, Poplar Bluff, who will receive a $500 scholarship.

Honorable mention winners are: Susan Mary Shemwell, Doniphan Senior high school, Doniphan; Virginia Gail Snead, Jamestown C-1 high school, Jamestown; Evelyn Fern Stoner, Keytesville R-III high school, Keytesville; Kathleen Marie Dubbert, Community R-6 high school, Laddonia; Sharon Marie Rothweiler, Notre Dame high school, St. Louis; Jean Claire Wessels, Bishop Dubourg high school, St. Louis; Mary Theresa Oates, Xavier high school for Girls, St. Louis; and Linda Jessie Godfrey, Unionville high school, Unionville.

As Missouri State Homemaker of Tomorrow for 1966, Miss Leitch, along with homemakers from the other 49 states and the District of Columbia, becomes eligible for honors as All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. Determining factors in this choice are the girls' scores in the original test plus personal observation and interviews during an expense paid tour of Colonial Williamsburg and Washington, D. C. for state Homemakers of Tomorrow, each accompanied by a faculty advisor.

Climax of the tour will be the American Table Dinner at which the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow will be announced. Her scholarship will be raised to $5,000, with scholarships for the second, third and fourth place winners being increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively. Katherine Leitch, Missouri's Homemaker of Tomorrow, is valedictorian of her class, a member of the National Honor Society and the recipient of a letter of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship program. Her extracurricular activities include serving as editor of the yearbook, participating in the senior play, the girls' glee club and mixed chorus, and membership in the librarians' club and the pep club.

To Katherine, the most important ability of a homemaker is "to provide a healthy, happy home in which every member of the family can develop to the fullest of his potential." She enjoys all her homemaking duties, and tries to "create an attractive appearance in everything I do in the home, from baking cookies to arranging pictures on the walls of my room."

Among her hobbies are reading, stamp collecting, knitting, skating, playing the piano, horseback riding, swimming and hiking. Amidst all these activities she also found time to work in the admissions office of Tarkio College last summer, earning money toward her college expenses. She will probably attend Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio next year.

Janice Threlkeld, Missouri's second place winner, has also received a letter of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship program and is a member of the National Honor Society. She plays in the school band and is a member of the pep club and the Future Teachers of America.

Teaching English is the career she has chosen, and she will begin her preparation for it next fall at either Southeast Missouri State College or Missouri University.

HOARDED LOVE

Love that is hoarded, moulds at last
Until we know some day
The only things we ever have
Are those we give away.

And kindness that is never used
But hidden all alone,
Will slowly harden till it is
As hard as any stone.

It is the things we always hold
That we will lose some day;
The only things we ever keep
Are those we give away.

Spring Brings Lower Food Prices

NEW YORK AP -- Spring arrived this week, and with it lower prices for food shoppers.

The prospect is for lower prices for pork, turkey, chicken and eggs.

Lamb is likely to be more costly when the early spring lambs move to market next month. There may not be as many available this year, because farmers are holding back so many more ewes.

In the dairy section, the outlook is for higher prices than 1965. Milk production is down. So are butter and cheese.

In produce, cold weather has stalled the growth of vegetables in Florida.

Cold weather also has stalled the growth of the spinach crop in California, and heavy rains have disrupted the strawberry harvest in Mexico.

Peas, applesauce, pimento and king crab are plentiful. But there is less canned asparagus, creamed corn, frozen broccoli, tuna fish and oysters.

Orange juice currently is the lowest - priced single-strength citrus juice, the reverse of its usual position. Prices of frozen orange juice concentrate also have been lower than a year ago.

"Lower federal tax rates would make it easier for state and local governments to finance their growing needs, and there would thus be less reason for the federal government to concern itself with activities that can be usually managed better on a decentralized basis."

Ranking second in the state is Janice Kay Threlkeld, Poplar Bluff high school, Poplar Bluff, who will receive a $500 scholarship.

As Missouri State Homemaker of Tomorrow for 1966, Miss Leitch, along with homemakers from the other 49 states and the District of Columbia, becomes eligible for honors as All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. Determining factors in this choice are the girls' scores in the original test plus personal observation and interviews during an expense paid tour of Colonial Williamsburg and Washington, D. C. for state Homemakers of Tomorrow, each accompanied by a faculty advisor.

Climax of the tour will be the American Table Dinner at which the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow will be announced. Her scholarship will be raised to $5,000, with scholarships for the second, third and fourth place winners being increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively. Katherine Leitch, Missouri's Homemaker of Tomorrow, is valedictorian of her class, a member of the National Honor Society and the recipient of a letter of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship program. Her extracurricular activities include serving as editor of the yearbook, participating in the senior play, the girls' glee club and mixed chorus, and membership in the librarians' club and the pep club.

To Katherine, the most important ability of a homemaker is "to provide a healthy, happy home in which every member of the family can develop to the fullest of his potential." She enjoys all her homemaking duties, and tries to "create an attractive appearance in everything I do in the home, from baking cookies to arranging pictures on the walls of my room."

Among her hobbies are reading, stamp collecting, knitting, skating, playing the piano, horseback riding, swimming and hiking. Amidst all these activities she also found time to work in the admissions office of Tarkio College last summer, earning money toward her college expenses. She will probably attend Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio next year.

Janice Threlkeld, Missouri's second place winner, has also received a letter of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship program and is a member of the National Honor Society. She plays in the school band and is a member of the pep club and the Future Teachers of America.

Teaching English is the career she has chosen, and she will begin her preparation for it next fall at either Southeast Missouri State College or Missouri University.

HOARDED LOVE

Love that is hoarded, moulds at last
Until we know some day
The only things we ever have
Are those we give away.

And kindness that is never used
But hidden all alone,
Will slowly harden till it is
As hard as any stone.

It is the things we always hold
That we will lose some day;
The only things we ever keep
Are those we give away.

All-State Team Run-Down

As the 1965-66 high school basketball season comes to a close with the release of the ALL-STATE selections, each player who's name is mentioned, has to be proud of his accomplishment he has made, as he is one of approximately 700 players in his class who have made the top honor in high school basketball.

Each player who made the All-State team needs to be congratulated for the fine representation they gave the SEMO area, as each boy put a lot of work and desire in their goal, which they have accomplished.

Each class sports a 10-man squad, which ranges from 6'7" to 5'10" in height, with the scoring averages from a 17 points per game to a high of 26.9.

Stan Whitson of Parma who made Class S All-State and was Southeast Missouri's leading scorer, was the second highest scorer among the All-State selections with a 26.8 average.

Three other players from the SEMO area were named to the All-State teams and they are Don Tomlinson of Kennett, Class L All-State, Don Metz of Oran, Class M All-State, and Mike Wise of Bloomfield, Class M All-State.

The district was well represented on this years All-State selections as each young athlete put a lot of hard work and effort in his playing.

Following is a rundown of the All-State players from the SEMO district:

STAN WHITSON --Stan says of his selection to the All-State team Class S "it is a great honor to be placed on the team, and I feel that I made the team from the work of my teammates on the team I played for, as each boy was very unselfish and we all worked together. He goes on and says "its a great honor to be on the team and it is worth all the effort and work put into playing basketball, and he feels that other players on the team are as good as he is and that he was proud to play on such a fine team and under such a fine coach."

Stan averaged 26.8 points per game this past season and hit 53.4 per cent from the field and 77 percent from the free throw lane. Stan led his team in every department and averaged nine rebounds per game and six assist.

He has signed a letter of intent to Walnut Ridge Jr. college in Walnut Ridge, Arkansas.

DON METZ --Don didn't really know what to say about the honor bestowed upon him as he said he was "real happy and real surprised to make the team, and it was the team and the coach that made it possible for me to make the team."

A very fast and cool headed ball player who sets up scores under the basket, and averaged eight assist per game this past season, averaged 22 points per game while hitting a fine 46 percent from the field and 78 percent from the free throw lane.

He averaged seven rebounds a game to be only 5'11" tall and contributed to the teams fast break strength with his fine speed and agility.

MIKE WISE --A very dedicated team man, Mike led his Bloomfield Wildcat team to fourth place in the state tournament, and to first place finishes in four other tournaments.

Mike gives his team and his coaches praise for his ability to make the All-State team.

Mike also feels that it is one of the best honors bestowed on him and that the team effort and spirit was the major factor of his All-State selector.

He sported a 21 point average this past season and averaged 16 rebounds a game and hit 49 per cent from the field, Mike led his team in assist averaging eight per game.

He is also a fine defensive man and handles the ball like a man 5'7" with fine moves and good speed.

DON TOMLINSON--This is the second year for Don to make All-State as he made it last year playing for Bragg City a Class S school.

Don averaged 24.8 points per game with a total of 695 points and hit an amazing 65 per cent of his field goal attempts and pulled down 14 rebounds a game.

Coach Turllington, says of his superstar "one of the best boys I have ever coached and Don is the type of boy a coach gets once in a lifetime, and he was proud to have been able to coach such a fine player."

Cards Beat L.A. 6-1

VERO BEACH, FLA. -- Harassed Dodger General Manager Buzzie Bavasi, who has his troubles this spring with you know who, expressed the notion Wednesday that the new-look Cardinals can contend for the first division in '66--and maybe even more.

"There defense will be better," said the boss man of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, "they've got good pitching and, I think, they'll have enough power."

The Dodgers' No. 1 executive sounded off while the Red Birds plastered his defanged pros, 6-1, for their third successive exhibition victory to reach the .500 level in the land of sunshine. Following the Cardinals' impressive performance, Bavasi added a postscript:

"I know they've got the speed."

LOU ON BALL

Lou Brock virtually claimed the lead-off position in the St. Louis batting order, Manager Red Schoendienst hinted, by scoring three times and banging three hits. The Cardinals outhit the Bums by only an 11-10 margin, but it actually wasn't that close at Holman Field.

The Birds' road-runner, chief threat to Maury Wills' base-stealing supremacy, sent his message to the Dodger captain in the ninth inning.

Brock led off the final round with his third straight hit, then stole second base without drawing a throw. When Ron Perranoski, last of three L. A. pitchers, threw to batter Bobby Tolan, Brock also swiped third. That was only the beginning.

When Tolan tapped a slow roller to the right of first baseman Ron Fairly, Brock held his ground. Fairly tossed--too late --to the second baseman covering, and Brock slid home with the final run.

Track-Men Swing into Action

COLUMBIA (AP)—Coaches of defending champions in the Missouri high school indoor track meets this weekend look for tougher competition than last season.

Seventy-nine Class M teams with 527 athletes and 46 Class S schools with 245 performers will kick off the 34th annual state meet Friday afternoon. Saturday afternoon, 74 Class L schools with 571 participants will take over.

"We think we have a chance," said coach Don Bure of Archie, the Class S champion. "Our relay teams are strong. We took the 880 and the mile last spring and we have three men on each team back this year."

Missing this season are David Shipley, Archie's pole vault winner, and Don Hocker, its half-mile winner.

"We feel like we have a chance," said coach Rod Kramer of Aurora, the defending Class M champion.

He is looking for points from his two relay teams and from Mike Snodgrass, a 60-yard dash man. The 880-yard relay team was runner-up last year. Aurora has won four meets this season against some of the strongest teams in southwest Missouri.

Only two of the 1965 winners will be back in the Class M. They are Charles Scearse of Plattsburg, the 60-yard winner, and Larry Blackstun of Macon, the broad jump champion.

"I think it will be a lot tougher this year," said coach Harvey Greer of Kansas City's Central High, the Class L champion. "It sounds to me like Beaumont of St. Louis will be pretty tough this year."

Beaumont was fifth last year with 8½ points. Central High amassed 35, far ahead of Kansas City's Center, which had 11.

Greer has Phil Cosey, the two-time 60 - yard dash champion back this season, as well as Norris White, the broad jump winner last year. Also back is the runner-up in that event, Stephen Hatton.

The Central track team has emerged undefeated in four area events so far.

"Our half-mile relay team is the best in Kansas City," Greer said. "I don't know how they'll match up with Beaumont."

Another winner back from last year is Gary Howren of Webster Groves, who did 6-2 in the high jump.

Frank Howard is ready to head north; Dave Nicholson hopes for a trip south.

They met before starting their respective travels, and the result was a 13-7 exhibition victory for Houston over Washington Wednesday.

Nicholson drove in six runs with two homers for the Astros while Howard unloaded a 508-foot homer for the Senators.

The homer was the first of the spring for the monstrous Howard, but the previous lack of the long ball hasn't bothered the outfielder, who has been spraying enough other hits.

"I'm ready to go north," the 6-foot-7, 255 pounder said. "I wish the season was starting now. I've never felt this way before so early."

Nicholson, on the other hand, would like to feel that his lusty performance against the Senators will help get him headed south—from Oklahoma City to Houston.

The 26-year-old Nicholson is trying to win a job in the Astro outfield, but he is on the roster of Houston's Pacific Coast League farm team at Oklahoma City.

"I'm getting about a hit a game, and I'm not striking out as much," the one-time bonus baby said. "At least they (the Astros) keep playing me. I hope that means something."

The Astros picked up Nicholson from the Chicago White Sox for whom he hit only .153 with two homers and 12 runs batted in last year. While with Chicago in 1963 Nicholson set a major league record by striking out 175 times.

In helping Houston overcome Howard's homer for Washington plus two by Don Lock, Nicholson belted a grand slam in the third inning and connected again with one on in the ninth. John Bateman and Jim Wynn also homered for the Astros.

The White Sox and Detroit extended their winning streaks Wednesday, Chicago edging Cincinnati 4-3 for its sixth straight and the Tigers nipping Atlanta 3-2 for their seventh in a row.

Vada Pinson and Deron Johnson homered for Cincinnati, but the White Sox won in the ninth on Tom McCraw's run-scoring single. Detroit scored unearned runs in the first and third innings, then won in the sixth on Jim Northrup's triple and a single by Don Wert.

The New York Mets increased their record to 8-3, rallying for five unearned runs in the ninth inning and a 7-6 victory over Pittsburgh. Bill Mazeroski's error started the rally, and Jim Hickman's two-out, run-scoring single capped it.

Minnesota edged Philadelphia 5-4 on Rick Renick's ninth-inning homer while eighth-inning homers by Clete Boyer and Bobby Murcer gave the New York Yankees an 8-6 verdict over Boston.

Bill Bryan drove in four runs with a homer and a single, leading Kansas City past Baltimore 11-9, and Lou Brock helped St. Louis to a 6-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers with two singles and a double.

In two more one-run contests, the Chicago Cubs topped California 4-3 on Ron Santo's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning, and Cleveland trimmed San Francisco 2-1 on run-scoring singles by Fred Whitfield and Max Alvis in the ninth.

Monsieur Jean Bauchet is an art collector and a connoisseur of fine automobiles. He understands that quiet in a car means quality. After driving a '66 Ford XL, he said: "They would not have to make Paris streets so smooth if all cars rode like this."

Who says a '66 Ford rides quieter than Jean Bauchet's $12,000 Facel Vega?

Jean Bauchet!

Ford's Quiet Man, who recently toured Europe demonstrating the exceptional quality of the '66 Ford to owners of some of the world's most expensive cars, here discusses a '66 Ford XL with Monsieur Bauchet outside of Monsieur Bauchet's Paris home.

"Such smoothness, such silence," says Jean Bauchet. "Your Ford is quieter, M'sieu."

Ford's quiet quality is the result of advanced engineering features like a revolutionary new frame that "tunes out" road vibrations . . . the strongest body ever on a Ford. But the quiet ride is just one of many reasons why you're ahead in a Ford all the way.

Only Ford in its class offers ▪ Stereo-Sonic Tape Player option that brings you over an hour of uninterrupted music of your choice, on each self-threading, snap-in tape cartridge. ▪ Magic Doorgate for wagons (standard equipment) that opens out like a door and down like a tailgate, depending on whether you are loading kids or cargo. ▪ Silent-Flo Ventilation (on 4-door hardtops) that brings in fresh air and gets rid of smoke and stale air with the windows closed. ▪ Even Ford's keys are special—they're double-edged so they fit in locks either side up. All-State Team Run-Down

As the 1965-66 high school basketball season comes to a close with the release of the ALL-STATE selections, each player who's name is mentioned, has to be proud of his accomplishment he has made, as he is one of approximately 700 players in his class who have made the top honor in high school basketball.

Each player who made the All-State team needs to be congratulated for the fine representation they gave the SEMO area, as each boy put a lot of work and desire in their goal, which they have accomplished.

Each class sports a 10-man squad, which ranges from 6'7" to 5'10" in height, with the scoring averages from a 17 points per game to a high of 26.9.

Stan Whitson of Parma who made Class S All-State and was Southeast Missouri's leading scorer, was the second highest scorer among the All-State selections with a 26.8 average.

Three other players from the SEMO area were named to the All-State teams and they are Don Tomlinson of Kennett, Class L All-State, Don Metz of Oran, Class M All-State, and Mike Wise of Bloomfield, Class M All-State.

The district was well represented on this years All-State selections as each young athlete put a lot of hard work and effort in his playing.

Following is a rundown of the All-State players from the SEMO district:

STAN WHITSON --Stan says of his selection to the All-State team Class S "it is a great honor to be placed on the team, and I feel that I made the team from the work of my teammates on the team I played for, as each boy was very unselfish and we all worked together. He goes on and says "its a great honor to be on the team and it is worth all the effort and work put into playing basketball, and he feels that other players on the team are as good as he is and that he was proud to play on such a fine team and under such a fine coach."

Stan averaged 26.8 points per game this past season and hit 53.4 per cent from the field and 77 percent from the free throw lane. Stan led his team in every department and averaged nine rebounds per game and six assist.

He has signed a letter of intent to Walnut Ridge Jr. college in Walnut Ridge, Arkansas.

DON METZ --Don didn't really know what to say about the honor bestowed upon him as he said he was "real happy and real surprised to make the team, and it was the team and the coach that made it possible for me to make the team."

A very fast and cool headed ball player who sets up scores under the basket, and averaged eight assist per game this past season, averaged 22 points per game while hitting a fine 46 percent from the field and 78 percent from the free throw lane.

He averaged seven rebounds a game to be only 5'11" tall and contributed to the teams fast break strength with his fine speed and agility.

MIKE WISE --A very dedicated team man, Mike led his Bloomfield Wildcat team to fourth place in the state tournament, and to first place finishes in four other tournaments.

Mike gives his team and his coaches praise for his ability to make the All-State team.

Mike also feels that it is one of the best honors bestowed on him and that the team effort and spirit was the major factor of his All-State selector.

He sported a 21 point average this past season and averaged 16 rebounds a game and hit 49 per cent from the field, Mike led his team in assist averaging eight per game.

He is also a fine defensive man and handles the ball like a man 5'7" with fine moves and good speed.

DON TOMLINSON--This is the second year for Don to make All-State as he made it last year playing for Bragg City a Class S school.

Don averaged 24.8 points per game with a total of 695 points and hit an amazing 65 per cent of his field goal attempts and pulled down 14 rebounds a game.

Coach Turllington, says of his superstar "one of the best boys I have ever coached and Don is the type of boy a coach gets once in a lifetime, and he was proud to have been able to coach such a fine player."

Cards Beat L.A. 6-1

VERO BEACH, FLA. -- Harassed Dodger General Manager Buzzie Bavasi, who has his troubles this spring with you know who, expressed the notion Wednesday that the new-look Cardinals can contend for the first division in '66--and maybe even more.

"There defense will be better," said the boss man of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, "they've got good pitching and, I think, they'll have enough power."

The Dodgers' No. 1 executive sounded off while the Red Birds plastered his defanged pros, 6-1, for their third successive exhibition victory to reach the .500 level in the land of sunshine. Following the Cardinals' impressive performance, Bavasi added a postscript:

"I know they've got the speed."

LOU ON BALL

Lou Brock virtually claimed the lead-off position in the St. Louis batting order, Manager Red Schoendienst hinted, by scoring three times and banging three hits. The Cardinals outhit the Bums by only an 11-10 margin, but it actually wasn't that close at Holman Field.

The Birds' road-runner, chief threat to Maury Wills' base-stealing supremacy, sent his message to the Dodger captain in the ninth inning.

Brock led off the final round with his third straight hit, then stole second base without drawing a throw. When Ron Perranoski, last of three L. A. pitchers, threw to batter Bobby Tolan, Brock also swiped third. That was only the beginning.

When Tolan tapped a slow roller to the right of first baseman Ron Fairly, Brock held his ground. Fairly tossed--too late --to the second baseman covering, and Brock slid home with the final run.

Track-Men Swing into Action

COLUMBIA (AP)—Coaches of defending champions in the Missouri high school indoor track meets this weekend look for tougher competition than last season.

Seventy-nine Class M teams with 527 athletes and 46 Class S schools with 245 performers will kick off the 34th annual state meet Friday afternoon. Saturday afternoon, 74 Class L schools with 571 participants will take over.

"We think we have a chance," said coach Don Bure of Archie, the Class S champion. "Our relay teams are strong. We took the 880 and the mile last spring and we have three men on each team back this year."

Missing this season are David Shipley, Archie's pole vault winner, and Don Hocker, its half-mile winner.

"We feel like we have a chance," said coach Rod Kramer of Aurora, the defending Class M champion.

He is looking for points from his two relay teams and from Mike Snodgrass, a 60-yard dash man. The 880-yard relay team was runner-up last year. Aurora has won four meets this season against some of the strongest teams in southwest Missouri.

Only two of the 1965 winners will be back in the Class M. They are Charles Scearse of Plattsburg, the 60-yard winner, and Larry Blackstun of Macon, the broad jump champion.

"I think it will be a lot tougher this year," said coach Harvey Greer of Kansas City's Central High, the Class L champion. "It sounds to me like Beaumont of St. Louis will be pretty tough this year."

Beaumont was fifth last year with 8½ points. Central High amassed 35, far ahead of Kansas City's Center, which had 11.

Greer has Phil Cosey, the two-time 60 - yard dash champion back this season, as well as Norris White, the broad jump winner last year. Also back is the runner-up in that event, Stephen Hatton.

The Central track team has emerged undefeated in four area events so far.

"Our half-mile relay team is the best in Kansas City," Greer said. "I don't know how they'll match up with Beaumont."

Another winner back from last year is Gary Howren of Webster Groves, who did 6-2 in the high jump.

Clay Says He Will Retire If Chuvalo Wins

TORONTO (AP) — A suddenly modest Cassius Clay says he'll retire if George Chuvalo strips him of his heavyweight title next Tuesday night.

"I'd have to retire," he said Wednesday after sparring eight rounds in preparation for his 15-round scrap against the Canadian champion from Toronto.

"Once I lose, that's it."

But there seems little chance of that happening. Clay, is a lopsided favorite.

One Toronto bookie said a few small operators are taking bets with Clay a 6-1 favorite.

"But the big bookies, and I mean the really big guys, want no part of it," he said.

Murray Goodman of New York, a spokesman for Main Bout Inc., which owns the closed-circuit television rights, said 39 sites in the United States and Canada have been lined up so far for showings. He estimated total capacity at 210,000 and said a gross of $500,000 is likely to be added to the promotional pot.

There will be no live TV of the fight, which begins at 10:30 p.m., EST, but it will be carried live on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. radio network.

Clay, who usually brags about his fighting ability and predicts his knockout rounds, has been surprisingly quiet and modest since setting up training camp here last Friday.

He sat in his dressing room and explained why.

"The people here in Canada were nice enough to have me. I'm fighting one of their boys. He's a nice boy and I have nothing against him."

He said he pops off only because he's the target of criticism because of his religious beliefs. Clay is a member of the Black Muslims.

He was the object of considerable criticism over his recent remarks concerning the U.S. role in Viet Nam. He made them at the time his draft board was reclassifying him and making him eligible for Army duty.

"I got a lot of letters after my Viet Nam remarks," he said. "They said I was yellow. I was a coward. But they didn't leave any address. I read them all and just laughed."

The number of outlets for closed-circuit TV was a sharp drop from the more than 200 originally lined up for the Clay-Ernie Terrell bout, but Clay said a purse reduction does not bother him unduly.

Baseball Suit Continues Today With Two Top Braves' Executives

By HARRY CHANDLER

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller got a look at the other side of the coin Wednesday as depositions of the two top Braves' executives became a part of the trial record in Wisconsin's anti-trust suit against baseball.

The gray-haired, poker-faced magistrate has been asked by the state to order the Braves to return to Milwaukee this season unless another National League franchise is awarded the city.

But the defense told Judge Roller that to do so would be a financial catastrophe for the Braves.

Baseball attorneys quoted from a deposition of Braves' President John McHale in an effort to show the effect of such an order on the club which now calls Atlanta its home.

"It would be disastrous," McHale said in the deposition. "It would bankrupt the Braves' organization.

Braves Board Chairman William C. Bartholomay was quoted as saying he never received a "bona fide" offer from any Wisconsin resident to purchase the baseball team. He said efforts to interest Winsconsin investors to share equally with his group in stock ownership of the club shortly after its purchase in 1962 were unsuccessful.

He added that an offering of Braves' stock at public sale to Wisconsin residents also had "disappointing" results early in 1963. Of the 115,000 shares offered at $11.37½ per share, between 13,000 and 14,000 shares were purchased.

"In your opinion, why didn't the stock sell?" Bartholomay was asked.

"No interest," he replied.

Bartholomay's statement recited the factors which influenced his recommendation to the club's board of directors in October 1964 to seek a transfer from Milwaukee to Atlanta.

He said he was "terribly disappointed" that commitments to the club by business leaders in a season ticket sale for 1964 were not met. Bartholomay said the group had pledged to sell 7,500 season tickets but the campaign sold only 4,391. Of these, he said, the Braves' sales team, which included several players and Manager Bobby Bragan, accounted for all but 482.

Other factors listed by Bartholomay included: slumping attendance, decrease in broadcast revenue, four major league franchises in the Chicago-Milwaukee-Minneapolis area, hostility by local politicians and the press, a general decline in sports interest in Milwaukee, the club's financial situation, a per capita income less than that of the other teams in the league, and the failure of the county to end ticket hawking around the stadium.

The defense has several more depositions for prominent baseball figures, including National League club owners, to be read into the record in question-and-answer form.

Baseball is using this format to reply to Wisconsin's charge that by approving the Braves' transfer to Atlanta, the National League exerted monopolistic powers to boycott Milwaukee as a big league city. Last December, senior circuit club owners rejected an application by Milwaukee Brewers Inc., for a 1966 expansion franchise.

Celtics Fall To Royals

By C. C. MCGILLICUDDY
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—"We came to play and they came to win," said Boston Celtics Coach Red Auerbach after his defending National Basketball Association champions got off on the wrong foot in the Eastern Division semifinal playoffs.

The comment summed up the series opener after the Royals outhustled the favored Celtics 107-103 to send the series to Cincinnati for the second game Saturday night with the Reoyals holding a 1-0 advantage.

The Western Division semifinal playoff opens tonight in Baltimore with the Bullets getting the home-court advantage for their meeting with the St. Louis Hawks.

"The money game, baby, we won the money game," cried big Wayne Embry as the Royals entered their dressing room after upsetting the Celtics. The underdog Cincinnati team seemed as surprised as the crowd of 9,510 that they had taken Boston much easier than the score indicated.

Royals' Coach Jack McMahon credited his defense with the victory, as did Jerry Lucas, one of the heroes of the big victory.

Although Lucas and Oscar Robertson tied for game scoring honors with 26 points apiece, Lucas was far from happy with his performance.

"Oscar and I just weren't hitting our shots, he said. "The defense saved us. If the two of us had been hitting, it wouldn't even have been a ballgame."

McMahon thought Lucas' play was sensational," explaining "his timing hasn't been better all season."

Auerbach felt it was a game where everything went right for the Royals and nothing went right for the Celtics.

"Everything we did in the first quarter was wrong," he said reflecting on Boston's sorry performance in which it scored only 17 points.

"We were just as bad in the third quarter," he added. "We cut the lead to three points and then we gave up the ball three times without taking a shot."

FEWER FARMERS, MORE MONEY AND BUREAUCRATS

Do you know that Communist Yugoslavia has just bought $46 million worth of wheat from the United States on terms so long and favorable as to make it practically a gift? This is just one more evidence of the failure of Communism. The Communist countries cannot feed themselves, and are all suffering from hunger. Communism is tempting to the people of undeveloped countries on the basis of its rosy theory, and not on the basis of performance. Unfortunately the record of the latter is obscured and the people, in ignorance of the facts, go on believing in and working for the Dream which is a mere figment of the imagination.

The United States Department of Agriculture spent $5.9 billion in 1961 and $7.9 billion in 1964, an increase of two billion dollars.

Meanwhile, the number of employees in the Department increased from 98,694 in 1960 to 117,481 in 1965.

From 1958 to 1964 the farm population declined from 15,635,000 to 12,954,000.

Obviously, the fewer farmers we have the more money and employees is required to implement the government's efforts to control them.

In his December Report from Washington, Congressman Richard L. Roudebush said, "Of the 418,000 allotted for a federal war on poverty project in Indianapolis, $295,000, or roughly three-fourths of the expenditures, will go for salaries of the program administrators."

Most women, like small children, enjoy saying no; and most men, like idiots, take them seriously.

Clay Says He Will Retire If Chuvalo Wins

TORONTO (AP) — A suddenly modest Cassius Clay says he'll retire if George Chuvalo strips him of his heavyweight title next Tuesday night.

"I'd have to retire," he said Wednesday after sparring eight rounds in preparation for his 15-round scrap against the Canadian champion from Toronto.

"Once I lose, that's it."

But there seems little chance of that happening. Clay, is a lopsided favorite.

One Toronto bookie said a few small operators are taking bets with Clay a 6-1 favorite.

"But the big bookies, and I mean the really big guys, want no part of it," he said.

Murray Goodman of New York, a spokesman for Main Bout Inc., which owns the closed-circuit television rights, said 39 sites in the United States and Canada have been lined up so far for showings. He estimated total capacity at 210,000 and said a gross of $500,000 is likely to be added to the promotional pot.

There will be no live TV of the fight, which begins at 10:30 p.m., EST, but it will be carried live on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. radio network.

Clay, who usually brags about his fighting ability and predicts his knockout rounds, has been surprisingly quiet and modest since setting up training camp here last Friday.

He sat in his dressing room and explained why.

"The people here in Canada were nice enough to have me. I'm fighting one of their boys. He's a nice boy and I have nothing against him."

He said he pops off only because he's the target of criticism because of his religious beliefs. Clay is a member of the Black Muslims.

He was the object of considerable criticism over his recent remarks concerning the U.S. role in Viet Nam. He made them at the time his draft board was reclassifying him and making him eligible for Army duty.

"I got a lot of letters after my Viet Nam remarks," he said. "They said I was yellow. I was a coward. But they didn't leave any address. I read them all and just laughed."

The number of outlets for closed-circuit TV was a sharp drop from the more than 200 originally lined up for the Clay-Ernie Terrell bout, but Clay said a purse reduction does not bother him unduly.

Baseball Suit Continues Today With Two Top Braves' Executives

By HARRY CHANDLER

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller got a look at the other side of the coin Wednesday as depositions of the two top Braves' executives became a part of the trial record in Wisconsin's anti-trust suit against baseball.

The gray-haired, poker-faced magistrate has been asked by the state to order the Braves to return to Milwaukee this season unless another National League franchise is awarded the city.

But the defense told Judge Roller that to do so would be a financial catastrophe for the Braves.

Baseball attorneys quoted from a deposition of Braves' President John McHale in an effort to show the effect of such an order on the club which now calls Atlanta its home.

"It would be disastrous," McHale said in the deposition. "It would bankrupt the Braves' organization.

Braves Board Chairman William C. Bartholomay was quoted as saying he never received a "bona fide" offer from any Wisconsin resident to purchase the baseball team. He said efforts to interest Winsconsin investors to share equally with his group in stock ownership of the club shortly after its purchase in 1962 were unsuccessful.

He added that an offering of Braves' stock at public sale to Wisconsin residents also had "disappointing" results early in 1963. Of the 115,000 shares offered at $11.37½ per share, between 13,000 and 14,000 shares were purchased.

"In your opinion, why didn't the stock sell?" Bartholomay was asked.

"No interest," he replied.

Bartholomay's statement recited the factors which influenced his recommendation to the club's board of directors in October 1964 to seek a transfer from Milwaukee to Atlanta.

He said he was "terribly disappointed" that commitments to the club by business leaders in a season ticket sale for 1964 were not met. When I Was A Boy

B.F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes.

(Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

January 30, 1920

When I was a boy, as I have said before, many, very many things were different to what they are today, even among men, women and children. Fact is there is scarcely anything as it was away back in the dim past, and scarcely anything is now done as it was when I was a boy. This I can easily prove by any man or woman who has lived as long as I have. How many boys and girls or even young men and women ever saw a trundle bed, to say nothing of sleeping in one. A trundle bed is one low enough to slip under the big bed in the day time and so be out of the way. I was raised in one as was all the old people in the country I guess. Sometimes there would be three or four kids in the little bed, and when morning came we always had lots of fun sticking our feet up under the covers, thus making a tent. It was lots of fun until we all had to get up and push the bed out of sight.

When I was a boy I never saw flowers at a funeral that I can remember. It was not the custom of the country to wait until a neighbor died to show their appreciation, but cast their flowers in the shape of neighborly kindnesses while the neighbor was still living, which is much better, according to my way of thinking, than the plan now so much in vogue all over the country. Many persons contribute to a fund to buy flowers for some one they hardly know, and were not able to afford to do so. A person is some times neglected when sick or in distress, but often as soon as he or she dies people hurry to buy costly flowers to cover their casket. This looks very nice but not half as nice as to bestow flowers of love and attention while the poor man or woman was still living.

When I was a boy I never even heard of women and girls playing cards, either for pleasure or for a prize. Occasionally one could hear of a gambling game with cards among a few men in the neighborhood, but never heard of women engaging in card playing. Women of the long ago would have considered it disgraceful to do such a thing and such a thought never entered their minds. There was plenty of gambling in Glasgow among the men, but none with the women. It is quite different now when card parties are more common than wedding and the ladies appear to greatly enjoy the game. While I do not approve of card playing we are bound to say that women have as much right to play cards as the men. Why not? They have the ballot and every other privilege that men have and if they wish to play cards we see no good reason why they should not, but even that is better than talking about their neighbors. But I wish they would not play cards any more, but they will.

When I was a boy people in the country were never bothered with corns or bunions, notwithstanding the fact that everybody wore coarse, heavy boots or shoes that would get wet and muddy and then dry out and be as hard as wood, but a good greasing with tallow generally softened them enough to wear next day. And these heavy work shoes were usually made at home and made large enough not to cramp one's toes. Yes, it's different now, as almost every man and woman you meet complains of sore feet, or corns or bunions, all caused by wearing fine fashionable shoes one or two sizes too small. It is surprising the number of big lumps on the side of the big toe or a bad corn or fallen arch one can find in a day by asking about your feet. Pride, and nothing else has been the main cause of all this suffering, but we all appear to wear tight shoes and suffer rather than to wear good fitting shoes and have your feet laugh because of their ease.

Jim DeLay At Oliver Conference

CHICAGO -- Jim DeLay, partner in DeLay Bros. Implement Co., Inc., Oliver dealers at Bell City and Charleston, Mo., attended a two-day policy seminar in Chicago with top officials of Oliver Corporation, Chicago-based farm and industrial equipment subsidiary of White Motor Corporation, and ten other outstanding dealers from all sections of the United States.

DeLay was selected jointly by Oliver's sales branch at Memphis and by all Oliver dealers from the Mid-South to represent this area at Oliver's thirteenth annual Dealer Advisory Council national meeting held in Chicago March 14-15. The round-table discussions covered a broad range of items involved in the manufacturer-dealer relationship, with special emphasis on ways in which the industry can best serve its customers.

"This is my second trip to Oliver's national Dealer Advisory Council and I find it to be a most effective means for conveying farmer-customers' ideas and complaints directly to the company's top management and manufacturing executives. This is most important to us dealers and our customers, because we have found by experience that it results in better products." DeLay said.

DeLay and his brother, Hubert, and their wives were honored by Oliver last February at the President's Honor Council in San Francisco for their outstanding sales performance in 1965.

S. W. White, Jr., president of Oliver since 1960, inaugurated dealer advisory councils in the industry with the first Oliver council in 1952. White, who firmly believes in the value of personal contacts in business, was then a member of a team of young troubleshooters assigned to the responsibility of strengthening Oliver's dealer organization. He introduced the dealer advisory council as a means for accomplishing the direct, personal exchange of ideas between outstanding representative dealers and the company's top management.

One dealer from each of Oliver's eleven nation-wide branch areas attended the Council's thirteenth meeting this year. Morning seminars with Oliver president White and top company officials covered a broad range of policy matters of mutual interest, such as new products, competition, inventory stocking and control, retail trends, product and service schools, business management clinics, product shipments, and merchandising repair parts and used equipment. In the afternoon sessions, groups of 2 or 3 dealers met individually with each of Oliver's manufacturing plant managers to discuss nuts and bolts matters relating to each product.

"We are convinced that the advice and counsel we receive from our leading dealers such as the DeLay Brothers contribute significantly to the over-all effectiveness of our operations." White said. "These seminars are not just a formal exercise. Many of Oliver's products and programs evolve directly from these get-togethers."

Change in Time Bill Asked

ST. LOUIS AP -- Missouri's senators, who insisted on tacking on an amendment to the Daylight Saving Time bill, said they acted in the belief the original bill would be harmful to their state.

The original bill, as passed by the House last week, would provide that, starting in 1967, Daylight Saving would be in effect from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

It would require uniform observance throughout the nation, although a state legislature could exempt an entire state. The Senate version, adopted Tuesday by a voice vote, would permit Daylight time in part of a state.

Missouri Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long, both Democrats, insisted on the amendment because, as Long said, the House bill "would be terribly disruptive and harmful."

At present, St. Louis and many Missouri cities along the Mississippi turn to Daylight time each spring, while the remainder of the state remains on Standard Time.

When I Was A Boy

B.F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes.

(Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

January 30, 1920

When I was a boy, as I have said before, many, very many things were different to what they are today, even among men, women and children. Fact is there is scarcely anything as it was away back in the dim past, and scarcely anything is now done as it was when I was a boy. This I can easily prove by any man or woman who has lived as long as I have. How many boys and girls or even young men and women ever saw a trundle bed, to say nothing of sleeping in one. A trundle bed is one low enough to slip under the big bed in the day time and so be out of the way. I was raised in one as was all the old people in the country I guess. Sometimes there would be three or four kids in the little bed, and when morning came we always had lots of fun sticking our feet up under the covers, thus making a tent. It was lots of fun until we all had to get up and push the bed out of sight.

When I was a boy I never saw flowers at a funeral that I can remember. It was not the custom of the country to wait until a neighbor died to show their appreciation, but cast their flowers in the shape of neighborly kindnesses while the neighbor was still living, which is much better, according to my way of thinking, than the plan now so much in vogue all over the country. Many persons contribute to a fund to buy flowers for some one they hardly know, and were not able to afford to do so. A person is some times neglected when sick or in distress, but often as soon as he or she dies people hurry to buy costly flowers to cover their casket. This looks very nice but not half as nice as to bestow flowers of love and attention while the poor man or woman was still living.

When I was a boy I never even heard of women and girls playing cards, either for pleasure or for a prize. Occasionally one could hear of a gambling game with cards among a few men in the neighborhood, but never heard of women engaging in card playing. Women of the long ago would have considered it disgraceful to do such a thing and such a thought never entered their minds. There was plenty of gambling in Glasgow among the men, but none with the women. It is quite different now when card parties are more common than wedding and the ladies appear to greatly enjoy the game. While I do not approve of card playing we are bound to say that women have as much right to play cards as the men. Why not? They have the ballot and every other privilege that men have and if they wish to play cards we see no good reason why they should not, but even that is better than talking about their neighbors. But I wish they would not play cards any more, but they will.

When I was a boy people in the country were never bothered with corns or bunions, notwithstanding the fact that everybody wore coarse, heavy boots or shoes that would get wet and muddy and then dry out and be as hard as wood, but a good greasing with tallow generally softened them enough to wear next day. And these heavy work shoes were usually made at home and made large enough not to cramp one's toes. Yes, it's different now, as almost every man and woman you meet complains of sore feet, or corns or bunions, all caused by wearing fine fashionable shoes one or two sizes too small. It is surprising the number of big lumps on the side of the big toe or a bad corn or fallen arch one can find in a day by asking about your feet. Pride, and nothing else has been the main cause of all this suffering, but we all appear to wear tight shoes and suffer rather than to wear good fitting shoes and have your feet laugh because of their ease.

A SMALL GAY KITE

A small gay kite sails on the wind
High above the trees,
And a happy child is unaware
That he is building memories.

A small gay kite will bring
Back suddenly this treasured hour
While a grandson holds the strings.

White, Jr., president (l.), and D. W. Koegle, vice president-marketing. Standing, left to right, are J. D. Wormley, executive vice president, H. A. Parker, director of dealer development, and H. L. Johnson, vice president and general sales manager.

Jim DeLay At Oliver Conference

CHICAGO -- Jim DeLay, partner in DeLay Bros. Implement Co., Inc., Oliver dealers at Bell City and Charleston, Mo., attended a two-day policy seminar in Chicago with top officials of Oliver Corporation, Chicago-based farm and industrial equipment subsidiary of White Motor Corporation, and ten other outstanding dealers from all sections of the United States.

DeLay was selected jointly by Oliver's sales branch at Memphis and by all Oliver dealers from the Mid-South to represent this area at Oliver's thirteenth annual Dealer Advisory Council national meeting held in Chicago March 14-15. The round-table discussions covered a broad range of items involved in the manufacturer-dealer relationship, with special emphasis on ways in which the industry can best serve its customers.

"This is my second trip to Oliver's national Dealer Advisory Council and I find it to be a most effective means for conveying farmer-customers' ideas and complaints directly to the company's top management and manufacturing executives. This is most important to us dealers and our customers, because we have found by experience that it results in better products," DeLay said.

DeLay and his brother, Hubert, and their wives were honored by Oliver last February at the President's Honor Council in San Francisco for their outstanding sales performance in 1965.

S. W. White, Jr., president of Oliver since 1960, inaugurated dealer advisory councils in the industry with the first Oliver council in 1952. White, who firmly believes in the value of personal contacts in business, was then a member of a team of young troubleshooters assigned to the responsibility of strengthening Oliver's dealer organization. He introduced the dealer advisory council as a means for accomplishing the direct, personal exchange of ideas between outstanding representative dealers and the company's top management.

One dealer from each of Oliver's eleven nation-wide branch areas attended the Council's thirteenth meeting this year. Morning seminars with Oliver president White and top company officials covered a broad range of policy matters of mutual interest, such as new products, competition, inventory stocking and control, retail trends, product and service schools, business management clinics, product shipments, and merchandising repair parts and used equipment. In the afternoon sessions, groups of 2 or 3 dealers met individually with each of Oliver's manufacturing plant managers to discuss nuts and bolts matters relating to each product.

"We are convinced that the advice and counsel we receive from our leading dealers such as the DeLay Brothers contribute significantly to the over-all effectiveness of our operations," White said. "These seminars are not just a formal exercise. Many of Oliver's products and programs evolve directly from these get-togethers."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am 11 years old but I need help as bad as any grownup who ever wrote to you.

My sister is 15 and she is very beautiful. I am just average looking. If I was in a different family it wouldn't be so noticeable, but with a beautiful sister it keeps coming up all the time.

My father has always carried a picture of my sister in his wallet but he never carried a picture of me. I don't take a very good picture so I thought maybe if I took a really good one and gave it to him he would carry it.

Three weeks ago I took the money I have saved and I went to a photographer. I left my glasses off and smiled with my mouth closed so my braces wouldn't show. The picture came out good I thought.

When I gave it to my father he said it was nice and thanked me for it. But, Ann, he didn't put it in his wallet. It is still in the bureau drawer.

Should it matter that much that I am not beautiful? After all, I am his daughter just like my sister is. Is there anything I can say to get him to carry my picture?---HURT FEELINGS

Dear Hurt Feelings: I'll bet your dad is one of those busy men who has a lot on his mind. He probably meant to put your picture in his wallet and forgot. Show him this column, honey, and you will see that I am right.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's sister is one of those sexy but dumb women (age 24) who attracts worthless men like a magnet. She was married at 18, divorced at 20, and now she is mixed up with a professional hockey player whose wife is in a mental hospital.

My sister-in-law told me last night that she is pregnant and the man wants to marry her but he can't divorce his wife because of where she is.

I spoke to a lawyer this morning and learned that such a divorce can be obtained legally in this state, under certain conditions -- provided the mental patient is willing. This afternoon I went to see the wife and she couldn't have been nicer. She said she would give her husband a divorce if he asked for one--that she would not want to be responsible for an out-of-wedlock child.

What can be done about this mess?---STANDBY

Dear Standby: It sounds as if they have the wrong one in the mental hospital. The wife makes better sense than any of them.

Since the hockey player has never asked his wife for a divorce it seems pretty obvious that he has been stringing along your sexy but dumb sister-in-law.

He is obliged (legally) to support the child and take care of his girl friend's medical expenses. Tell her. She probably doesn't know this either.

Confidential to HOW SHALL I TELL HER?: Don't bother. She'll never change. Accept her good qualities and overlook the rest. Conceit is a very strange disease. It makes everyone sick but the person who has it.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I prefer the Daily Standard because it carries a section for every member of the family, including World News. I am very happy it has the World News section because it covers local and world news all at once. I like the women's page and comics also.

To the Editor:

Anyone of an employable age, who is not completely naive, is aware of how often unemployment compensation benefits are used as 'vacation money' and that the higher they become, the less incentive there is to seek work again in a hurry.

Unfortunately, many people are under the impression that they are actually contributing a portion of the taxes collected to subsidize this program. They are surprised to find that the employer bears the full cost of this program and they certainly should understand that increased benefits will mean increased taxes to the employer, which in turn will be reflected in passing on the cost in the form of higher prices of services and goods that they buy.

TO THE EDITOR:

Well-known Non-Communists are news only when they do something or say something which they should not have said or done. In refraining from Communistic and Socialistic activities, they must be very circumspect when they would like for their views to be known. Non-Communists must be willing to be spoken of adversely and listed as extremists. Millions of people hope our national sovereignty will be maintained and our country's independence retained but dare not say much, as patriotism is not thought to be profitable nor love of freedom fashionable. Vast numbers of people are wanting to do something about our loss of liberty, and they are going to begin showing each other the way.

Very truly yours,

Dear Ann Landers: I am 11 years old but I need help as bad as any grownup who ever wrote to you.

My sister is 15 and she is very beautiful. I am just average looking. If I was in a different family it wouldn't be so noticeable, but with a beautiful sister it keeps coming up all the time.

My father has always carried a picture of my sister in his wallet but he never carried a picture of me. I don't take a very good picture so I thought maybe if I took a really good one and gave it to him he would carry it.

Three weeks ago I took the money I have saved and I went to a photographer. I left my glasses off and smiled with my mouth closed so my braces wouldn't show. The picture came out good I thought.

When I gave it to my father he said it was nice and thanked me for it. But, Ann, he didn't put it in his wallet. It is still in the bureau drawer.

Should it matter that much that I am not beautiful? After all, I am his daughter just like my sister is. Is there anything I can say to get him to carry my picture?---HURT FEELINGS

Dear Hurt Feelings: I'll bet your dad is one of those busy men who has a lot on his mind. He probably meant to put your picture in his wallet and forgot. Show him this column, honey, and you will see that I am right.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's sister is one of those sexy but dumb women (age 24) who attracts worthless men like a magnet. She was married at 18, divorced at 20, and now she is mixed up with a professional hockey player whose wife is in a mental hospital.

My sister-in-law told me last night that she is pregnant and the man wants to marry her but he can't divorce his wife because of where she is.

I spoke to a lawyer this morning and learned that such a divorce can be obtained legally in this state, under certain conditions -- provided the mental patient is willing. This afternoon I went to see the wife and she couldn't have been nicer. She said she would give her husband a divorce if he asked for one--that she would not want to be responsible for an out-of-wedlock child.

What can be done about this mess?---STANDBY

Dear Standby: It sounds as if they have the wrong one in the mental hospital. The wife makes better sense than any of them.

Since the hockey player has never asked his wife for a divorce it seems pretty obvious that he has been stringing along your sexy but dumb sister-in-law.

He is obliged (legally) to support the child and take care of his girl friend's medical expenses. Tell her. She probably doesn't know this either.*

Confidential to HOW SHALL I TELL HER?: Don't bother. She'll never change. Accept her good qualities and overlook the rest. Conceit is a very strange disease. It makes everyone sick but the person who has it.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

To the Editor:

Anyone of an employable age, who is not completely naive, is aware of how often unemployment compensation benefits are used as 'vacation money' and that the higher they become, the less incentive there is to seek work again in a hurry.

Unfortunately, many people are under the impression that they are actually contributing a portion of the taxes collected to subsidize this program. They are surprised to find that the employer bears the full cost of this program and they certainly should understand that increased benefits will mean increased taxes to the employer, which in turn will be reflected in passing on the cost in the form of higher prices of services and goods that they buy.

TO THE EDITOR:

Well-known Non-Communists are news only when they do something or say something which they should not have said or done. In refraining from Communistic and Socialistic activities, they must be very circumspect when they would like for their views to be known. Non-Communists must be willing to be spoken of adversely and listed as extremists. Millions of people hope our national sovereignty will be maintained and our country's independence retained but dare not say much, as patriotism is not thought to be profitable nor love of freedom fashionable. Vast numbers of people are wanting to do something about our loss of liberty, and they are going to begin showing each other the way.

Very truly yours,

More Space For Parking Hayti Goal

HAYTI -- Several members of the merchants committee of the Hayti Chamber of Commerce met with the board of aldermen Monday for a discussion concerning the providing of more parking area on the city square.

A plan was presented by the group which provided for widening the present streets around the "Square" by 30 feet on the east and west side, and 15 feet on the north and south side. According to proponenets of the plan, this would provide approximately 40 additional parking spaces, and would still leave adequate space for trees and grass.

Merchants and business men present were Roy Moore, David King, A. B. Barkovitz, Bill Capps, Milton Kelley, Jim Ray, Q. J. Skinner, and Don McAnally. Those speaking in favor of the plan as proposed were Moore, Barkovitz, Kelley, and Ray. The only opposition to the plan was McAnally.

The plan was discussed with several points left unresolved. These included how the project was to be financed, and whether meters or free parking would be provided, should the plan be adopted.

Mayor L. R. Bain and members of the board of aldermen were of the opinion that further action should be delayed until the completion of a planning and zoning study which is now being made by the Architectural firm of Harland Bartholomew and Associates. It was pointed out that this study had been contracted for by the City at a cost of approximately $13,000. Of this amount, the cost to the city will be about $4,000. This plan met with the approval of the group, who asked that a meeting be set with representatives of the architectural firm at the earliest possible date. At least two aldermen stated that they felt that any plan to change the City Square should be decided by a vote of the citizens of the city. This, if it should be the case, would require a special election, as time would not allow it to be brought to a vote in the coming city elections on April 5.

Sunrise Rites On Easter at Ross School

HAYTI -- Sunrise Easter services will be jointly conducted by nine North Pemiscot County churches at 5:30 a.m. April 10.

Rev. Don Kuehle, pastor of Methodish Churches at Wardell and Hayward said other participating churches are First Baptist Church at Wardell, Hayward Baptist church, Wardell Church of the Nazarene, Wardell Gospel Tabernacle, Ingram Ridge Baptist church, Boekerton Baptist church, and Stanley Pilgrim church.

The athletic field at Ross school, at the intersection of highway 61 and state route A, will be the scene of the sunrise services. Rev. Kuehle said the order of the service will include:

Invocation by Pastor Calvin Henning, Wardell church of the Nazarene, followed by congregational singing led by Sonnie Walker, director of music of the First Baptist church at Wardell. Special Easter music will be furnished by the Pilgrimettes, famed vocal group from Stanley Pilgrim church, and the Wardell Girls' Sextet under the direction of Mrs. Peggy Wilson. The Easter prayer will be delivered by Rev. Fred Boreu, pastor of Ingram Ridge Baptist church.

The Rev. Mr. Kuehle will deliver a brief Easter sermon, with Mr. Walker leading the congregation in the service finale -- the stirring Easter message in song, "He Lives".

Junior College Endorsed for Lower Bootheel

KENNETT -- A junior college district for the lower portion of the Bootheel, as recommended to the Missouri commission on higher education, was endorsed at a joint meeting of Chamber of Commerce directors from Kennett, Hayti and Caruthersville held at Hayti.

The group was in unanimous agreement and set another meeting for April 26 at the Hayti elementary school.

This April meeting will be an open meeting of school officials from Pemiscot and Dunklin counties and the southern portion of New Madrid county, and business leaders of the area.

Junior college officials from the State department of education and other officials associated with the junior college movement will be invited to attend the April meeting.

No Contests in Hayti Election

HAYTI -- With only two aldermen to be elected this year, there will be no opposition. With the passing of the filing deadline on Monday, the only two candidates were incumbents Tommy Pate of ward 1, and John M. Chism of ward two. The election will be held April 5.

The only other issue to be voted on in the city election will be the annexation of two areas to the city.

"My husband says I look years younger in this hat," one woman told another.

"Really? What's your age?"

Thirty."

"No. I mean without your hat."

House Approval Expected on Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is expected to give final congressional approval and send to President Johnson today an emergency $13.1-billion appropriation bill to help pay for the stepped-up war in Viet Nam.

The bill's money figure — the exact amount requested by the President — is not in dispute. The House voted the funds last week but the Senate, in giving its 87-2 approval Tuesday, added a minor amendment.

The amendment would limit Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's authority to transfer funds in support of South Vietnamese and other Allied troops.

The money, to be used during the remaining three months of fiscal 1966, will purchase military hardware, support military operations and pay military personnel in Viet Nam.

Included is a $415-million emergency appropriation for economic assistance to Southeast Asia and the Dominican Republic. About $275 million of that money is earmarked for South Viet Nam.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, a leading critic of the administration's Southeast Asia policies who voted Tuesday for the multibillion-dollar war money bill, offered a new solution for peace in a speech Tuesday night at the University of Connecticut.

The Arkansas Democrat said peace in Southeast Asia depends far more on a settlement between the United States and China than on who is to participate in a South Vietnamese government and how it is to be formed.

"As long as China and America are competitors for predominance in Southeast Asia there can be no lasting peace or stability in that part of the world," Fulbright said.

He proposed that "by one means or another, we indicate to the Chinese that we are prepared to remove American military power not only from Viet Nam but from all Southeast Asia in return for a commitment on the part of China to abstain from military intervention.

President Johnson, during an impromptu White House press conference Tuesday, offered this comment on the Fulbright committee hearings:

"We think it is very good to have the opinion of these professors and experts and ambassadors and other people."

But, he added, "as far as I am aware, it is not the position of this country that creates the problems with China. It is China's own position."

The President said the United States is "very anxious to try to have more contact with her and more exchanges with her, but as has been explained by all of these people, she hangs up the phone.

"Until there is some change on China's part," Johnson added, "I doubt that these academic discussions will do much more than satisfy people's yearning for information."

The President also announced that Robert W. Komer, 44, formerly a deputy special assistant to him, will become a special assistant on nonmilitary activities in Viet Nam and direct policies in such fields as education, medicare, and social and economic reforms.

Komer will leave for an inspection trip to South Viet Nam next Tuesday, Johnson said, and will be accompanied by Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance and Bill D. Moyers, presidential press association.

Swinger for the defense, dancer Karen Lynn Davidson, 22, obliged the court with demonstrations of seven dances performed at the club. Decision was deferred.

Couple Runs for All But one City Office

NEW MADRID -- If Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Masterson have their way and are successful in the city election they will hold down all but one city position.

Masterson has filed for four city offices and his wife is running for alderman from the first ward.

All the incumbents have filed for re-election and are unopposed except for the Mastersons.

He will be running against Robert Riley for mayor, O. E. Householder for city marshal, Jesse Bledsoe for police judge and Jack Long for collector.

The aspiring city politician ran against Long two years ago but failed to make much of a showing.

Mrs. Masterson will be running against James Helms for alderman from the first ward. The incumbent alderman from ward two is unchallenged in the April 5 city election.

Charge of Robbery Twelve Years

KENNETT -- Lee C. Chenoweth, 36, of Blytheville, Ark., tried in Dunklin county circuit court on a charge of armed robbery, was sentenced by Judge Arthur U. Goodman, Jr., to 12 years to the Missouri department of corrections.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker reported that, prior to the close of the state's evidence, the defendant withdrew his plea of innocent and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of robbing Weavers' Grocery near Rives Jan. 18, 1965.

Chenoweth had previously been convicted of armed robbery charges in Michigan in October of 1949 and was sentenced to the state penitentiary of Southern Michigan where he served 13 years.

Tight Money Pinch in Tax Payments

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK AP -- Increased federal taxes may still be a cliff-hanger in Washington. But many citizens are pretty sure of higher state and local taxes. And speeded-up federal tax collections will soon be pinching consumer pocketbooks and corporate treasuries.

A tighter money market is making borrowing to pay March and April tax instalments a costly and sometimes difficult task for many business firms.

Banks across the country report the demand for loans is rising despite the increased interest charges. Many banks are pushed to find the funds to lend to old customers, let alone take on new ones.

And interest rates are rising again at both levels--on loans, and on savings. The increased charge for borrowing is laid to the rising demand for funds to finance record business and consumer spending. The offer of more generous interest for deposits is due to competition among banks and other finance institutions. They want to lure investment funds into deposit accounts so that these can be used to meet the demand for loans.

If this seems like an endless circle, the turmoil may be increased rather than lessened while the decision on increased federal taxes hangs fire in Washington.

Such an increase would be aimed at cooling down the urge to spend on the part of consumers and business, by leaving each less money to spend after taxes.

Couple Runs for All But one City Office

NEW MADRID -- If Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Masterson have their way and are successful in the city election they will hold down all but one city position.

Masterson has filed for four city offices and his wife is running for alderman from the first ward.

All the incumbents have filed for re-election and are unopposed except for the Mastersons.

He will be running against Robert Riley for mayor, O. E. Householder for city marshal, Jesse Bledsoe for police judge and Jack Long for collector.

The aspiring city politician ran against Long two years ago but failed to make much of a showing.

Mrs. Masterson will be running against James Helms for alderman from the first ward. The incumbent alderman from ward two is unchallenged in the April 5 city election.

Charge of Robbery Twelve Years

KENNETT -- Lee C. Chenoweth, 36, of Blytheville, Ark., tried in Dunklin county circuit court on a charge of armed robbery, was sentenced by Judge Arthur U. Goodman, Jr., to 12 years to the Missouri department of corrections.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker reported that, prior to the close of the state's evidence, the defendant withdrew his plea of innocent and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of robbing Weavers' Grocery near Rives Jan. 18, 1965.

Chenoweth had previously been convicted of armed robbery charges in Michigan in October of 1949 and was sentenced to the state penitentiary of Southern Michigan where he served 13 years.

Tight Money Pinch in Tax Payments

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK AP -- Increased federal taxes may still be a cliff-hanger in Washington. But many citizens are pretty sure of higher state and local taxes. And speeded-up federal tax collections will soon be pinching consumer pocketbooks and corporate treasuries.

A tighter money market is making borrowing to pay March and April tax instalments a costly and sometimes difficult task for many business firms.

Banks across the country report the demand for loans is rising despite the increased interest charges. Many banks are pushed to find the funds to lend to old customers, let alone take on new ones.

And interest rates are rising again at both levels--on loans, and on savings. The increased charge for borrowing is laid to the rising demand for funds to finance record business and consumer spending. The offer of more generous interest for deposits is due to competition among banks and other finance institutions. They want to lure investment funds into deposit accounts so that these can be used to meet the demand for loans.

If this seems like an endless circle, the turmoil may be increased rather than lessened while the decision on increased federal taxes hangs fire in Washington.

Such an increase would be aimed at cooling down the urge to spend on the part of consumers and business, by leaving each less money to spend after taxes.

Long Urges Participation Of Farmers

ST. LOUIS -- U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D. Mo.) Monday urged farmers "to continue to participate in the feed grain program" and said that while feed grain exports are rising "modestly" there is still need for caution against overproduction.

Senator Long was speaking to the Mid-Continent Farmers Association.

"If we are to continue the progress we have made," Senator Long said, "and avoid the avalanche of surpluses that could lead to depressed corn, beef, and hog prices, farmers are going to have to divert at least as many acres from feed grain production this year as they did in 1965."

The Missouri Senator said "I sense a new optimism among farmers. Farm surpluses are down. Livestock prices are up. Farm income is up. And farm exports to aid the hungry of other nations are up."

"In the crop year just completed, we exported 745 billion bushels of feed grains, three times what we shipped out 10 years ago. Interest in our feed grains is developing in other countries," Senator Long said. "But they cannot begin to consume the quantities of feed grains that the American farmer is capable of producing."

Senator Long said farm exports may hit 8 billion dollars in 1970 -- up nearly 2 billion over last year. He said "it is not difficult to envision a wheat crop approaching two billion bushels--compared with 1.3 billion bushels last year."

"But feed grains do not have the same place in the world food program that wheat, rice, and some other crops have," Senator Long said. "Current efforts to combat hunger and starvation in the underdeveloped nations will call for very modest quantities of feed grains."

Senator Long also said he welcomes "the proposed change in rural electrification from all - Federal financing to a system involving both Government and private financing."

He said "The proposal would not mean an end to Congressional support for 2 percent REA financing but instead we look to it as a means to still greater service to rural people -- a strengthening of the REA program."
